Threat of All Night Session Held Over Senate

EFFORTS MADE TO BREAK THE FILIBUSTER RULING

SEEK TO PASS INTERIOR DEPARTMENT APPROPRIATION BILL

CARRIES WITH IT THE $25,000,000 RED CROSS RELIEF FUND

By THOMAS L. STOKES
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Washington, Jan. 21.—Republican senate leaders held the threat of an all-night session over that body today in an effort to break a filibuster and pass the interior department appropriation bill, carrying with it the $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund.

In the house, republicans were split, for the first time this session, over what to do with the controversial relief appropriation when it comes over from the senate.

Speaker Longworth, who previously has been able to uphold President Hoover's policy by massing the republican majority to defeat such direct relief funds, now is looking favorably upon a compromise. Majority Floor Leader Tilson disagrees, stoutly opposing any compromise.

Tilson did not attend a conference of leaders yesterday, participated in by Senate Majority Leader Watson and such house powers as Chairman Snell of the rules committee, Chairman Wood of the appropriations committee and Rep. Burnell, republican, Indiana.

The conferences continued today about the house lobbies while the senate went ahead with the interior supply bill.

Neither the senate filibuster, led by Senator Thomas, democrat, Oklahoma, nor the haste of republican leaders to get the interior measure enacted has anything to do with the $25,000,000 relief appropriation, which is the real concern of the house group.

Thomas and Senator King, democrat, Utah, are holding up the bill by lengthy speeches, because they want $51,000 advanced by the government to provide hospital facilities for Indians at the Fort Sill, Okla., agency. They expect other senators interested in Indian affairs to join them today.

After the filibuster had blocked action all day, Watson announced he would hold the senate in session all of tonight if necessary to pass the bill. His aim is to get the bill through as soon as possible to clear the jam of appropriation measures so as to prevent an extra session. Ten more remain to be acted upon.

The $25,000,000 appropriation, however, is of vital concern to the administration and house republican leaders who hitherto have checked attempts to vote money directly for relief.

SWEDISH PLAN OF LIQUOR SALE IS DESCRIBED

SEVERAL MEMBERS OF WICKERSHAM COMMISSION REFERRED TO IT

SUGGESTED A MODIFICATION OF SWEDISH STATE LIQUOR CONTROL FOR U. S.

Several members of the Wickersham commission suggest, in annexes to the commission's report on prohibition, that a modification of the Swedish state liquor control plan might be feasible for the United States. A description of the Swedish plan follows.

New York, Jan. 21.—(U.P.)—The sale and distribution of liquor in Sweden has been regulated for the past 10 years by a semi-official company which handles the entire "prohibition" problem. The government adopted the system as outlined by Dr. Ivan Bratt.

The semi-official company (known as Vin & Spiritcentralen) is privately organized, with the shareholders, but the government appoints a majority of its board of control. The government also names its managing director and half its auditors.

The sale of alcoholic beverages to the public is in the hands of companies, of which there are 120. Each controls a separate district. These companies establish stores at which liquor may be purchased for home consumption but not to drink on the premises.

Liquor by the bottle cannot be purchased anywhere else. They also appoint restaurants at which liquor may be purchased, and sell liquor to other restaurants and hotels, where it may be served only under the supervision and regulation of the company. These companies are all privately organized but county and municipal authorities name three of the five members of their boards.

Shareholders' profits in the wholesale company and in all the retail companies are limited to five per cent. All profits above that go to the government. It is estimated that the Swedish government averages about $25,000,000 a year from this source—about one-fifth the total annual revenue.

As a result of this Bratt system, nine-tenths of the liquor drinking is done in the home. In order to buy liquor in Sweden for home consumption it is necessary to have a passbook issued by the local companies, as noted above. To obtain a passbook one applies to the office of the company in the district in which he lives. He is given a questionnaire to answer.

The applicant must not only give his name and address, occupation, date and place of birth, but he must also go thoroughly into the social aspects of his life. He must tell how many persons there are in his family, if any, his income and whether or not he pays taxes. He must tell the size of his house and whether or not he has received charitable aid. He must tell whether he has ever been arrested particularly whether he has ever been arrested for drunkenness or any crime in which liquor has figured.

The answers are investigated thoroughly. If the applicant's record stands, he is in a position to receive a passbook. No one under 28 years of age can get a passbook.

Swedish citizens are strictly regulated, even with a passbook. None may buy more than four liters (about 4 1/2 quarts) of hard liquor a month. Officials point out this represents what the average law-abiding working man drank before the law was put into effect. But not every man may be allowed to buy that maximum. The authorities affix a maximum according to a man's income, his dependents and other considerations. Women are never allowed more than two liters a month. A wife never receives a passbook if her husband has one, and vice versa.

Fire Loss Increases

Waterloo, Ont., Jan. 21.—(U.P.)—Fire loss in Waterloo in 1930 showed a 100,000 per cent increase over the 1929 loss. Fire Chief Karges has announced. Last year's loss—$285,000—was greater than the total of losses during the preceding 20 years. Only $285 damage was caused by fire here in 1929.

Prohibition Issue is Forced Deeper Into National Politics, May Become Dominant

WICKERSHAM COMMISSION REPORT STUDIED

PRES. HOOVER HALTS TENTATIVE RECOMMENDATION FOR REVISION OF DRY LAW

SPECULATION OVER SEPARATE REPORTS AND COMMISSIONS' GENERAL FINDINGS

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 21.—A report that President Hoover had persuaded the Wickersham commission to abandon at the last moment a tentative recommendation for revision of the eighteenth amendment was confirmed today in an authoritative quarter.

The report followed speculation concerning discrepancies between the separate reports of the commissioners and the commission's general findings.

The commission in its general report stated that if the eighteenth amendment is revised, it should be changed to give congress power to "regulate" the liquor traffic instead of making prohibition mandatory, as now.

However, in his separate report, Judge William I. Grubb said he concurred in all of the conclusions "except that recommending that the amendment be revised immediately without awaiting further trial." Judge Paul J. McCormick said in his report that he was in accord with the recommendations "except that in which a revision of the 18th amendment is suggested immediately."

No such suggestion was contained in the final general report, either for action immediately or at any other time. The commission merely suggested what the change ought to be if anything is done.

President Hoover described this point in the commission's report as a "proposed revision of the eighteenth amendment which is suggested by them for possible consideration at some future time if the continued effort at enforcement should not prove successful."

However, Chairman Wickersham himself in his separate report referred to the revised proposals as "the one recommended in our report." Commissioner William S. Kenyon refers to "modification of the eighteenth amendment suggested by the commission." Henry W. Anderson says, "I concur in the recommendation of the report that the eighteenth amendment be modified as therein stated."

At the White House today neither the president nor his usual spokesman would confirm or deny that the president had persuaded the Wickersham commission to alter its recommendations with regard to revision of the 18th amendment.

Chairman Wickersham of the commission, however, denied the story although he made no explanation of or reference to the apparent discrepancies between the individual and the general reports.

He issued a 34-word statement saying that the claim "that the president persuaded this commission to abandon a tentative recommendation in favor of revising the 18th amendment is absolutely untrue and without any foundation whatever."

Amunition has been provided in the commission's report to force the prohibition issue deeper into national politics, with the possibility of its becoming the dominant issue in next year's presidential campaign, according to the prevalent view here.

President Hoover took his stand behind the eighteenth amendment and against its revision in his message to congress transmitting the report. This declaration was regarded here as committing the republican party, so long as it accepts Mr. Hoover's leadership, to the dry cause. It forecasts his campaign for re-election on the dry side. If the democrats, as desired by their national chairman, John J. Raskob, nominate an anti-prohibitionist, the issue would be forced.

While friends of prohibition found their cause strengthened by the president's prompt defense of the 18th amendment, the leverage of anti-prohibitionists was increased in two ways by the contents of the Wickersham report and denounced by the dry members of the commission.

Second, by the fact seven of the 11 commissioners declared individually for a constitutional change which would permit restoration of liquor traffic in localities which desired it.

Judge Kenyon, one of the dry members of the commission, urged a congressional investigation to air the whole story. He declared some of the evidence of prohibition corruption "is so startling that it is difficult to believe," and added:

"Of course, there was corruption before prohibition. The saloon was the center of political activity, but I think the corruption was not so widespread and flagrant as it now is. The amounts involved were not so large. Corruption had not become such an established art and racketeering was unknown."

A move designed to carry out a recommendation of Judge Kenyon was to be made today by Rep. LaGuardia, republican, New York, a wet. LaGuardia was prepared to introduce a resolution proposing a congressional inquiry into the corruption and graft.

LaGuardia, who has often charged the existence of widespread corruption in connection with prohibition, said he was very much impressed by Kenyon's report urging such an inquiry, coming as it did from a man long recognized as a dry leader. The LaGuardia resolution would authorize an investigation by a joint congressional committee.

MINNESOTA LAKE LEVELS BODY IN LONG STATEMENT

RECITES VALUE OF MINIMUM LAKE LEVELS, IMPORTANCE OF LAKE DISTRICT

ANSWERS ALL POINTS CALLED FOR AT HEARING HELD BY DIST. ENG. WILLING TODAY

The people of the lake region are confronted with a situation, the importance of which cannot be exaggerated. Our district, so abundantly blessed with the beauties of nature, faces a possible annihilation of its God-given natural resources. Interests, to whom our welfare is of secondary importance, have and evidently contemplate further destruction of our lake levels to satisfy their own private demands.

Our district has made good use of its natural advantages, in the way of improvement and conservation, to maintain and augment the millions of dollars which annually flow into our state, brought here by the beauty and drawing power of our wonderful lakes. That we should permit the spoliation or depletion of these lakes we cannot concede.

On Gull lake alone there is a property value of $1,500,000 figured at the current selling price plus about $3,000,000 for improvements which totals $4,500,000. Of course, Gull is the smallest of the reservoir lakes.

There are millions of dollars invested in the territory adjacent to the reservoir lakes in the upper Mississippi, partly in privately owned cottages, cottages for rent, resorts, business houses directly dependent on the tourist trade and many farms which are dependent on the tourist business for an outlet for their products. Where the government is trying to relieve present unfavorable conditions to business and farmers, it seems as though every department of our government should consider this angle when a situation arises where these unfavorable conditions can be remedied in one-half of one of the states of the Union, by protecting the largest income of that section—the tourist business. A folder showing 256 resorts includes only a small section of the reservoir lakes.

At the meeting on lake levels, called by Wildur Willing, Lieutenant Colonel Corps of Engineers, and held this afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce, the Minnesota Lake Levels Association offered the following relative to the establishment of higher minimum water levels in the reservoir lakes.

(1) The Minnesota Lake Levels Association was formed as a result of a mass meeting held in Brainerd, September 11, 1930, at which approximately 400 people attended representing approximately 250,000 residents. The officers and directors of this association were chosen so as to represent all the area of all sections tributary to the lakes of the upper Mississippi reservoirs. Besides them we are acting for hundreds of owners of local property who live in Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, Michigan, New York, Nebraska, Minnesota, Oregon, Florida, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Indiana, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wyoming, Ohio and practically every other state of the Union.

We have resolutions from many cities, organizations and their affiliations, including the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, The American Legion, The Greater Minnesota Ten Thousand Lakes Association, which is composed of resort owners and business men from all sections of the state of Minnesota and receives a large appropriation from the State Legislature. The Issak Walton League, The Arrowhead Association, Aitkin Commercial Club, Bemidji Civic and Commerce Association, Big Falls Arrowhead Club, Biwabik Chamber of Commerce, Carlton Commercial Club, Cass Lake Commercial Club, Chisholm Kiwanis Club, Cloquet Civic and Commerce Association, Cook Commercial Club, Cook County Automobile Club, Deer River Commercial Club, Duluth Chamber of Commerce, Ely Commercial Club, Eveleth Chamber of Commerce, Gilbert Commercial Club, Grand Rapids Commercial Club, Hibbing Chamber of Commerce, Hill City Commercial Club, International Falls Commercial Club, Lake Co. Development Ass'n. (Two Harbors), Meadowlands Commercial Club, Moose Lake Commercial Club, Nashauk Club, St. Louis County Club, Gilbert, Tower Commercial Club, Virginia Chamber of Commerce, Walker Automobile Club, West Duluth Commercial Club, West Duluth Business Mens Club, West End Business and Civic Club, Duluth, all endorsing the establishment of permanent higher minimum levels by legislation of Congress. We are attaching these endorsements that you have a general idea of their contents. We also have many letters from wholesale business houses in Duluth, Minneapolis and St. Paul who realize the necessity of establishing higher minimum levels.

SWEDISH PLAN OF LIQUOR SALE IS DESCRIBED

SEVERAL MEMBERS OF WICKERSHAM COMMISSION REFERRED TO IT

SUGGESTED A MODIFICATION OF SWEDISH STATE LIQUOR CONTROL FOR U. S.

Several members of the Wickersham commission suggest, in annexes to the commission's report on prohibition, that a modification of the Swedish state liquor control plan might be feasible for the United States. A description of the Swedish plan follows.

New York, Jan. 21.—(U.P.)—The sale and distribution of liquor in Sweden has been regulated for the past 10 years by a semi-official company which handles the entire "prohibition" problem. The government adopted the system as outlined by Dr. Ivan Bratt.

Swedish citizens are strictly regulated, even with a passbook. None may buy more than four liters (about 4 1/2 quarts) of hard liquor a month. Officials point out this represents what the average law-abiding working man drank before the law was put into effect. But not every man may be allowed to buy that maximum. The authorities affix a maximum according to a man's income, his dependents and other considerations. Women are never allowed more than two liters a month. A wife never receives a passbook if her husband has one, and vice versa.

Prohibition Issue is Forced Deeper Into National Politics, May Become Dominant

WICKERSHAM COMMISSION REPORT STUDIED

PRES. HOOVER HALTS TENTATIVE RECOMMENDATION FOR REVISION OF DRY LAW

SPECULATION OVER SEPARATE REPORTS AND COMMISSIONS' GENERAL FINDINGS

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Jan. 21.—A report that President Hoover had persuaded the Wickersham commission to abandon at the last moment a tentative recommendation for revision of the eighteenth amendment was confirmed today in an authoritative quarter.

The report followed speculation concerning discrepancies between the separate reports of the commissioners and the commission's general findings.

The commission in its general report stated that if the eighteenth amendment is revised, it should be changed to give congress power to "regulate" the liquor traffic instead of making prohibition mandatory, as now.

However, in his separate report, Judge William I. Grubb said he concurred in all of the conclusions "except that recommending that the amendment be revised immediately without awaiting further trial." Judge Paul J. McCormick said in his report that he was in accord with the recommendations "except that in which a revision of the 18th amendment is suggested immediately."

No such suggestion was contained in the final general report, either for action immediately or at any other time. The commission merely suggested what the change ought to be if anything is done.

President Hoover described this point in the commission's report as a "proposed revision of the eighteenth amendment which is suggested by them for possible consideration at some future time if the continued effort for enforcement should not prove successful."

However, Chairman Wickersham himself in his separate report referred to the revised proposals as "the one recommended in our report." Commissioner William S. Kenyon refers to "modification of the eighteenth amendment suggested by the commission." Henry W. Anderson says, "I concur in the recommendation of the report that the eighteenth amendment be modified as therein stated."

At the White House today neither the president nor his usual spokesman would confirm or deny that the president had persuaded the Wickersham commission to alter its recommendations with regard to revision of the 18th amendment.

Chairman Wickersham of the commission, however, denied the story although he made no explanation of or reference to the apparent discrepancies between the individual and the general reports.

He issued a 34-word statement saying that the claim "that the president persuaded this commission to abandon a tentative recommendation in favor of revising the 18th amendment is absolutely untrue and without any foundation whatever."

Amunition has been provided in the commission's report to force the prohibition issue deeper into national politics, with the possibility of its becoming the dominant issue in next year's presidential campaign, according to the prevalent view here.

President Hoover took his stand behind the eighteenth amendment and against its revision in his message to congress transmitting the report. This declaration was regarded here as committing the republican party, so long as it accepts Mr. Hoover's leadership, to the dry cause. It forecasts his campaign for re-election on the dry side. If the democrats, as desired by their national chairman, John J. Raskob, nominate an anti-prohibitionist, the issue would be forced.

While friends of prohibition found their cause strengthened by the president's preempt defense of the 18th amendment, the leverage of anti-prohibitionists was increased in two ways by the contents of the Wickersham report and denounced by the dryest members of the commission.

Second, by the fact seven of the 11 commissioners declared individually for a constitutional change which would permit restoration of liquor traffic in localities which desired it.

Judge Kenyon, one of the dryest members of the commission, urged a congressional investigation to air the whole story. He declared some of the evidence of prohibition corruption "is so startling that it is difficult to believe," and added:

"Of course, there was corruption before prohibition. The saloon was the center of political activity, but I think the corruption was not so widespread and flagrant as it now is. The amounts involved were not so large. Corruption had not become such an established art and racketeering was unknown."

A move designed to carry out a recommendation of Judge Kenyon was to be made today by Rep. LaGuardia, republican, New York, a wet. LaGuardia was prepared to introduce a resolution proposing a congressional inquiry into the corruption and graft.

LaGuardia, who has often charged the existence of widespread corruption in connection with prohibition, said he was very much impressed by Kenyon's report urging such an inquiry, coming as it did from a man long recognized as a dry leader. The LaGuardia resolution would authorize an investigation by a joint congressional committee.

No other new moves toward incorporating any of the commission's recommendations into law are anticipated. Wets and dries approach agreement in expectation that nothing will be done about the report at this session of congress except for discussion of it.

Meanwhile, the house wet bloc contemplated plans to stage another fight tomorrow against prohibition appropriations. It has organized to offer amendments to eliminate funds in the pending justice department supply bill for pay of informers, wire-tapping and government-owned speakeasies to entrap violators. The measure carries $11,350,000 for the prohibition bureau.

7. Learn the art of living together.
8. Marry between the ages of 22 and 30.

MINNESOTA LAKE LEVELS BODY IN LONG STATEMENT

RECITES VALUE OF MINIMUM LAKE LEVELS, IMPORTANCE OF LAKE DISTRICT

ANSWERS ALL POINTS CALLED FOR AT HEARING HELD BY DIST. ENG. WILLING TODAY

The people of the lake region are confronted with a situation, the importance of which cannot be exaggerated. Our district, so abundantly blessed with the beauties of nature, faces a possible annihilation of its God-given natural resources. Interests, to whom our welfare is of secondary importance, have and evidently contemplate further destruction of our lake levels to satisfy their own private demands.

Our district has made good use of its natural advantages, in the way of improvement and conservation, to maintain and augment the millions of dollars which annually flow into our state, brought here by the beauty and drawing power of our wonderful lakes. That we should permit the spoliation or depletion of these lakes we cannot concede.

On Gull lake alone there is a property value of $1,500,000 figured at the current selling price plus about $3,000,000 for improvements which totals $4,500,000. Of course, Gull is the smallest of the reservoir lakes.

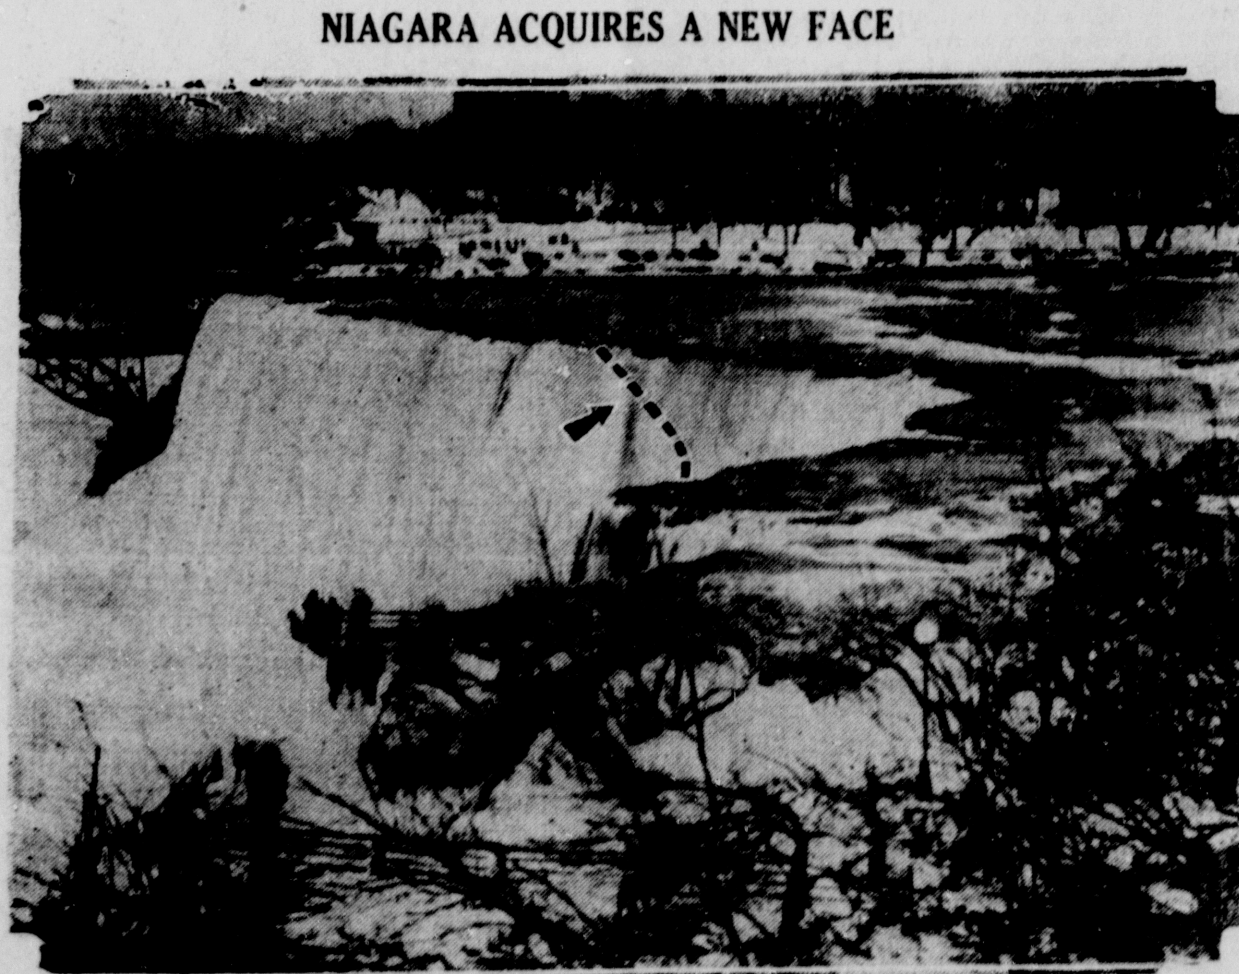

There are millions of dollars invested in the territory adjacent to the reservoir lakes in the upper Mississippi, partly in privately owned cottages, cottages for rent, resorts, business houses directly dependent on the tourist trade and many farms which are dependent on the tourist business for an outlet for their products. Where the government is trying to relieve present unfavorable conditions to business and farmers, it seems as though every department of our government should consider this angle when a situation arises where these unfavorable conditions can be remedied in one-half of one of the states of the Union, by protecting the largest income of that section—the tourist business. A folder showing 256 resorts includes only a small section of the reservoir lakes.

At the meeting on lake levels, called by Wildur Willing, Lieutenant Colonel Corps of Engineers, and held this afternoon at the Chamber of Commerce, the Minnesota Lake Levels Association offered the following relative to the establishment of higher minimum water levels in the reservoir lakes.

(1) The Minnesota Lake Levels Association was formed as a result of a mass meeting held in Brainerd, September 11, 1930, at which approximately 400 people attended representing approximately 250,000 residents. The officers and directors of this association were chosen so as to represent all the area of all sections tributary to the lakes of the upper Mississippi reservoirs. Besides them we are acting for hundreds of owners of local property who live in Colorado, Idaho, Kansas, Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Tennessee, Texas, Washington, Michigan, New York, Nebraska, Minnesota, Oregon, Florida, Pennsylvania, Oklahoma, Indiana, South Dakota, North Dakota, Wyoming, Ohio and practically every other state of the Union.

We have resolutions from many cities, organizations and their affiliations, including the Minneapolis Chamber of Commerce, The American Legion, The Greater-Minnesota Ten Thousand Lakes Association, which is composed of resort owners and business men from all sections of the state of Minnesota and receives a large appropriation from the State Legislature. The Issak Walton League, The Arrowhead Association, Aitkin Commercial Club, Bemidji Civic and Commerce Association, Big Falls Arrowhead Association, Carlton Chamber of Commerce, Carlton Commercial Club, Cass Lake Commercial Club, Chisholm Kiwanis Club, Cloquet Civic and Commerce Association, Cook Commercial Club, Cook County Automobile Club, Deer River Commercial Club, Duluth Chamber of Commerce, Ely Commercial Club, Eveleth Chamber of Commerce, Gilbert Commercial Club, Grand Rapids Commercial Club, Hibbing Chamber of Commerce, Hill City Commercial Club, International Falls Commercial Club, Lake Co. (Two Harbors), Meadowlands Commercial Club, Moose Lake Commercial Club, Nashua Club, St. Louis County Club, Gilbert, Tower Commercial Club, Virginia Chamber of Commerce, Walker Automobile Club, West Duluth Commercial Club, West Duluth Business Mens Club, West End Business and Civic Club, Duluth, all endorsing the establishment of permanent higher minimum levels by legislation of Congress. We are attaching these endorsements that you have a general idea of their contents. NIAGARA ACQUIRES A NEW FACE

Thousands of tons of rock, against which swift waters battered for ages, finally gave way and thundered down from the lip of Niagara, giving the noble cataract a new face. The section included that between the new-born rim and the dotted line indicated by the arrow, roughly 200 feet at its greatest extent, was filled with solid rock before the fall. LEGION, AUXILIARY IN JOINT SESSION

Mrs. Alta Holden Speaks of the Meaning of Fidae

The American Legion and Auxiliary held an interesting session Monday evening at the Iron Exchange hall. The executive committee report was heard at this time and communications regarding membership were read from Mrs. Weisner, district president, and Mrs. Forrester, state membership chairman.

It was decided by the Auxiliary to hold a food sale on January 31, particulars to be announced later. It was voted to donate to the Salvation Army campaign.

Following the business session, a short Fidae program was held in which Mrs. Alta Holden spoke on the meaning of Fidae. Miss Evelyn Mraz, president of the Auxiliary, spoke on music and art of Czechoslovakia. In her talk she also gave the history of the famous glass flowers at Harvard.

After the program, lunch was served. In explaining what Fidae meant, Mrs. Holden said, "It is coined from Interallied Federation of Ex-Service Men," being an organization made up of service men of all allied nations of the world war.

Its purpose was to draw ever closer the links which bound the Allies during the war, fought in common for a common cause, and to place at the service of peace all of its strength. It has eight million adherents, grouped in 36 associations, in 10 of the allied countries and has been officially recognized by all of those governments and the League of Nations. The 1931 meeting of this organization takes place in Prague, Czechoslovakia.

OH THESE WOMEN!

By

LEOLA ALLARD

Copyright 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A married woman who works, uses her money for necessities, and who gives her house work over to someone who likes it and needs the job, writes to protest the statement that jobs should go to single girls and not to married women in good circumstances.

"Why don't these girls who complain, buckle down to business and rout the married women by doing better work?" she asks. "I know an employer who says that she prefers to have ten married women working for her than 20 single ones because they do better work, take orders agreeably and do less powdering and fooling around."

She says she never objects to overtime and she puts her heart and soul into the work. She never knew an employer who didn't appreciate that kind of service.

"I'd say she must have a fine husband, who is a co-worker instead of the old fashioned variety. Not all women workers are that lucky. She will have to admit that a woman can't give overtime and work 'with her whole heart and soul' in an office and have any heart and soul left for her husband and her home. There is no question about that. It's a question as to which she thinks more important, I think the home, but we can't all think alike."

She makes these complaints regarding single workers: "What about the rich single girls who get the best job through influence and keep needy girls out of jobs?" "She's right. I think that is pretty selfish these days when jobs are scarce."

"I know one girl who drives her Packard car to work, takes long vacations and spends a goodly share of the winter in Florida. She dresses like Fifth Avenue and her fellow workers hate her. They know she hasn't a right to her job. Those girls are in a grand position to do welfare work; why don't they do it?" "Right! They should. One reason they don't is that they think they stand a better chance of meeting men in business."

"I worked with a married woman at one time, who bragged about what she did with her money, and what clothes she bought, while she didn't do any of the things she boasted of. She didn't want the other workers to know her husband couldn't support her. I felt so sorry for her when I learned the truth. She didn't want the flapping flappers to know she was in need."

"I've worked with girls whose parents supported them and they used all their income on clothes and cosmetics. Is that fair with people let out of jobs when they have to work to eat?" "It certainly isn't, but you are, I think, talking about the small number who do these things, and the best way to get them out is to shame them out. I hope this article helps. They are selfish and don't realize what damage they do. They'd be surprised if you told them. They want to do the right thing but they are pampered children who go about having their own way. They are not made to understand conditions."

Mrs. Alta Holden Speaks of the Meaning of Fidac

The American Legion and Auxiliary held an interesting session Monday evening at the Iron Exchange hall. The executive committee report was heard at this time and communications regarding membership were read from Mrs. Weissen, district president, and Mrs. Forrester, state membership chairman.

It was decided by the Auxiliary to hold a food sale on January 31, particulars to be announced later. It was voted to donate to the Salvation Army campaign.

Following the business session, a short Fidac program was held in which Mrs. Alta Holden spoke on the meaning of Fidac. Miss Evelyn Mraz, president of the Auxiliary, spoke on music and art of Czechoslovakia. In her talk she also gave the history of the famous glass flowers at Harvard.

After the program, lunch was served. In explaining what Fidac meant, Mrs. Holden said, "it is coined from 'International Federation of Ex-Servicemen,' being an organization made up of service men of all allied nations of the world war. Its purpose was to draw ever closer the lines which bound the Allies during the war, fought in common for a common cause, and to place at the service of peace all of its strength. It has eight million adherents, grouped in 36 associations, in 10 of the allied countries and has been officially recognized by all of those governments and the League of Nations. The 1931 meeting of this organization takes place in Prague, Czechoslovakia."

OH THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

Copyright 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

A married woman who works, uses her money for necessities, and who gives her house work over to someone who likes it and needs the job, writes to protest the statement that jobs should go to single girls and not to married women in good circumstances.

"Why don't these girls who complain, buckle down to business and rout the married women by doing better work?" she asks. "I know an employer who says that she prefers to have ten married women working for her than 20 single ones because they do better work, take orders agreeably and do less powdering and fooling around."

She says she never objects to overtime and she puts her heart and soul into the work. She never knew an employer who didn't appreciate that kind of service.

I'd say she must have a fine husband, who is a co-worker instead of the old fashioned variety. Not all women workers are that lucky. She will have to admit that a woman can't give overtime and work "with her whole heart and soul" in an office and have any heart and soul left for her husband and her home. There is too much to question about that. It's a question as to which she thinks more important. I think the home, but we can't all think alike.

She makes these complaints regarding single workers:

"What about the rich single girls who get the best job through influence and keep needy girls out of jobs?"

She's right. I think that is pretty selfish these days when jobs are scarce.

"I know one girl who drives her Packard car to work, takes long vacations and spends a goodly share of the winter in Florida. She dresses like Fifth Avenue and her fellow workers hate her. They know she hasn't a right to her job. Those girls are in a grand position to do welfare work why don't they do it?"

"Right!" They should. One reason they don't is that they think they stand a better chance of meeting men in business.

"I worked with a married woman at one time, who bragged about what she did with her money, and what clothes she bought, while she didn't do any of the things she boasted of. She didn't want the other workers to know her husband couldn't support her. I felt so sorry for her when I learned this truth. She didn't want the flapping flappers to know she was in need."

"I've worked with girls whose parents supported them and they used all their income on clothes and cosmetics. Is that fair with people let out of jobs when they have to work to eat?"

"I certainly isn't, but you are, I think, talking about the small number who do these things, and the best way to get them out is to shame them out. I hope this article helps. They are selfish and don't realize what damage they do. They'd be surprised if you told them. They want to do the right thing but they are pampered children who go about having their own way. They are not made to understand conditions."

STAUNCH DEFENSE MADE FOR LAKE LEVELS

tabulating these higher minimum levels.

We also wish to quote the following as part of a letter to the secretary of this organization from Congressman Knutson of this district. "We have a resolution agreed to and signed by all Minnesota senators and representatives, except Nolan who is in Panama but who will be with us heart and soul as he went on record for us at the Brainerd meeting, agreeing to stand by the bill as a unit." By bill is meant Bill No. H. R. 15600 as introduced in the house by Congressman Knutson and bill S-5637 as introduced in the senate by Senator Shipstead.

These letters, resolutions and general backing can mean only one thing, that the state of Minnesota is united in backing these two bills as above referred to, and if not passed see great damage to the Minnesota tourist business, which according to the Ten Thousand Lakes Association amounts to $88,000,000 per year.

In taking your preliminary notice by numbers we offer the following:

(1) Proposed legislation as follows: H R 15600 as introduced in the house; S 5637 as introduced in the senate.

The levels shown in these bills were agreed upon with much deliberation through the efforts of interested citizens who live on these lakes, who know the local conditions, cooperating with Congressman Knutson and the officers of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association, who are representative of all sections of the reservoir system. The minimum figures were placed as low as possible taking local conditions into consideration, namely:

1. That millions of fish shall not be land locked in pools and freeze out or die by reasons of excessive withdrawals of water from these reservoirs.
2. That people owning lands on these lakes may be able to have docks of reasonable length and proper swimming beaches.
3. That channels between various of these reservoir lakes shall be navigable.
4. That U. S. Mail service inaugurated by the government on these lakes might be able to function properly.
5. That public health may be protected from stagnant waters and drying wells.
6. That the scenic grandeur of this wonderful region shall be preserved.
7. That spawning beds for fish life and breeding grounds for wild fowl may be preserved.
8. That local investment of millions of dollars may be preserved for the good of the entire people of this area and the millions of visitors who annually come here for rest and recreation, and still provide the largest possible storage of water for navigation purposes.

The only maximum that is asked to be lowered is Pine which is mentioned in item (3).

(2) The effect on navigation of curtailing the capacities of the reservoirs.

(a) As far as navigation is concerned between the reservoirs and Minneapolis, we know of no one who asks for it or where it is a factor, there being practically no navigation.

(b) In a letter to F. N. Russell, secretary of this association, dated on Dec. 26, 1930, from Lieut. Col. Willing of the War Department, he advised the following, "Using the minimum stages as suggested in your letter (Winnibigoshish 6 feet, Leech 1 foot, Pokegama 6 feet, Pine 11 feet, Sandy 7 feet, Gull 5 feet), with maximums as now existing except Pine, at which reservoir a 16-foot maximum is assumed, the total reservoir capacity would be 63.95 billion cubic feet."

The figures we have from the War Department for the last five years at no time show a storage of over 48.825 billion cubic feet, which is considerably less than the storage capacity as would be established under this bill.

In 1926 the War Department records showed an increase of 9.4 billion cubic feet in stored water over 1925.

In 1927 an increase of 8.575 billion cubic feet.

In 1928 an increase of 8.3 billion cubic feet.

In 1929 a decrease of 24.18 billion cubic feet.

In 1930 to Nov. 1, 1930, a decrease of 11.295 billion cubic feet.

If this bill had been passed years ago the reservoirs today would be just as effective from a standpoint of navigation and still would have preserved our lakes in a satisfactory condition.

From the study of the above figures we are of the firm opinion that after these reservoirs are once filled to the proposed minimum stages, that the navigation interests will be fully as well served as under the present existing minimum stages. We have been informed by officials of the War Department that upon completion of the Hastings Dam that the demand from the reservoir lakes would be greatly reduced if not practically eliminated. Where the capacity under this bill will be 63.95 billion cubic feet and the highest storage for years has been only 48.825 billion cubic feet, we can see no reason why this capacity is not sufficient with the Hastings Dam now completed.

In regard to the effect of navigation below Minneapolis we have been advised by Congressman Knutson, and we have read many articles in the newspapers quoting Gen. Brown of the War Department to the effect that the dams of the nine-foot channel when completed, will require much less water than in the past from the reservoir lakes.

We wish to quote W. W. Morse, operating manager of the Upper Division Inland Waterways Corporation, who appeared in the Brainerd Chamber of Commerce rooms Sept. 11, 1930, as the representative of Secretary of War Hurley:

"On Oct. 1, 1930, the Hastings Dam will be completed. As soon as it is completed and put in operation next year, it will give 12 feet of water at St. Paul and 10 feet at the foot of the Ford Dam between St. Paul and Minneapolis. We have our 9-foot channel roadway between St. Paul and Minneapolis, and begin to use it next spring. This project of the 9-foot channel means the salvation of your northern lakes for when it is completed we have no longer use for your water."

Congressman Knutson asked Mr. Morse the following question: "This means that you will be drawing water from our lakes until this project is put through?"

To this Mr. Morse replied: "No, we won't draw anything more from our lakes because of the completion of the Hastings Dam."

We further wish to say that three years ago Major Williams of the War Department was at a meeting here in Brainerd. At that time he promised this section that as soon as the Hastings Dam was completed there would be no need of using the reservoir lakes of the upper Mississippi for navigation purposes. He also thought it would be possible for the War Department to relinquish control of them and turn control over to the state to be run in the interests of local needs.

(3) (a) The effect of caving banks on Cross and Whitefish lakes is taken care of in this legislation by the changing of maximum levels of this lake (Pine) down to 16 feet. Any caving up to that figure is a minimum compared to the damage being done at the present operating figures. This is the only lake on which a lower maximum has been asked in the bill.

(b) We are advised by the County Engineer and County Surveyor of Aitkin County that a stage of eleven feet at Sandy lake will not interfere with drainage conditions in the vicinity of McGregor.

Mr. Wolfe of Deer River advises that conditions under this bill will not be more detrimental to drainage in the environs of Leech and Winnibigoshish than at present.

(4) We have been advised by our engineers that if the Pokegama dam is operated in conjunction with the operation of the Leech and Winnibigoshish dams that much can be accomplished in not overflowing the lands in between. We further feel that more storage is now available above the Hastings Dam.

This additional reservoir capacity located where the water is needed should offset the reduced capacity of the lower reservoirs. Furthermore, we feel that lower average discharges should be required in the future than in the past.

(5) The fact that the reservoir capacities at Sandy lake, Pokegama, Leech and Winnibigoshish are somewhat reduced does not create a larger flood hazard at Aitkin than you have at the present time. In event that your present reservoirs are full you must let the water out and it must go by Aitkin; the same is true of the operation under the proposed new levels.

The above is the opinion of the County Engineer and County Surveyor at Aitkin.

(6) Sanitation on the Mississippi river between the reservoirs and Minneapolis does not depend on the water from these reservoirs. This problem of sanitation at the Twin Cities is a local problem with them.

Members of the Metropolitan Drainage Commission, including their engineer and chairman, have advised the officers of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association that they are in favor of establishing higher minimum levels on the reservoir lakes.

As to the effect on water power: these reservoirs were not built for development of water power, nor should they be operated for that purpose.

All power producers have auxiliary sources of power, so are not dependent on the reservoir waters during times of extreme low waters.

The cost of this auxiliary power is infinitesimal as compared with the enormous loss of fish and game and the money loss to established tourist business in this area during the short time necessary to restore these reservoirs to the proposed minimum levels.

(7) We are positive that there will be a tremendous reduction in the loss of fish and wild life if the reservoirs are operated under the proposed limits. The withdrawals from our lakes have annually killed millions of fish and miles of beautiful shore lines are rendered unsightly and unfit for recreational purposes. It is practically impossible for one to visualize without actually seeing these pitiful conditions.

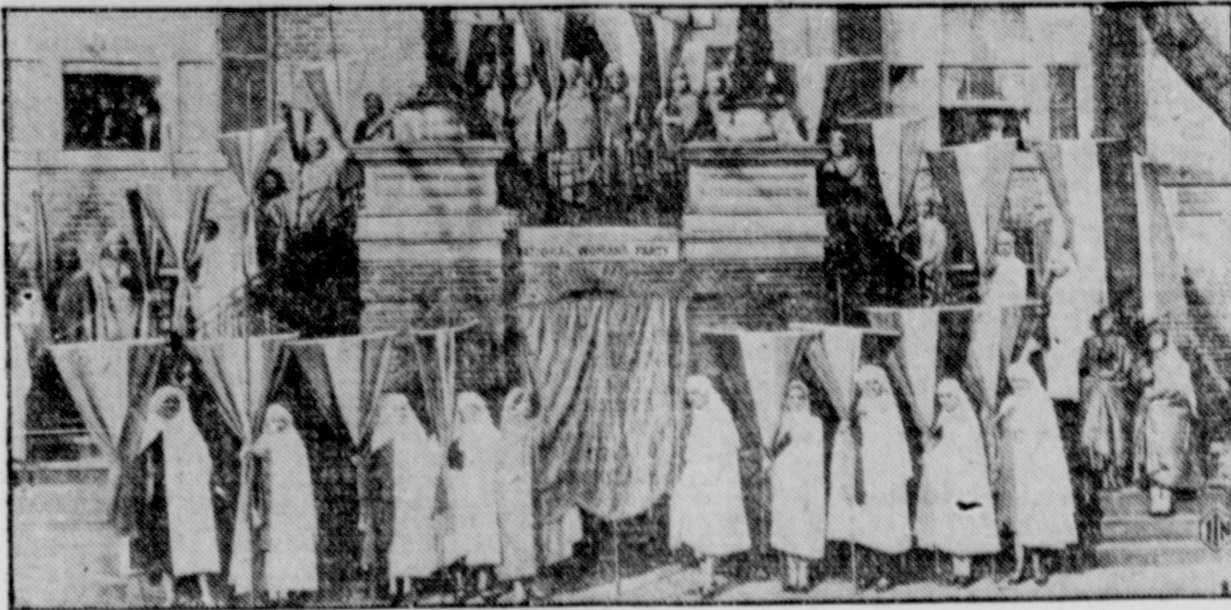

We have photographs which are being shown Col. Willing of the shore of Big Sandy lake. In a letter from A. C. Deatz, McGregor, Minn., who furnished the photograph, he says "We had seven miles of shore affected, 500 fish to each 100 feet of shore. The fish averaged 3 pounds each. Fish were hauled away in truckloads and the odor was unbearable." It is not realized by outsiders the unbelievable conditions existing, that are a hazard to public health and it is a crime to have such a ruthless slaughter of fish life. These seven miles of shore had a loss of almost one-fifth of a million large fish which would have propagated millions of live fish in a short time.

When the water was drawn in such large quantities from our reservoir system of lakes, this district lost the advantage of the natural bass hatchery at Gull river. Ordinarily this hatchery distributes a hundred thousand bass fingerlings to all the lakes in the Brainerd district as far north as Embury, east as far as the Aitkin county line and south to the Morrison county line.

This natural hatchery has been recognized by the State Game and Fish Commission as the best of its kind in the state, and annually the commission sends men to seine the fingerlings and trucks to distribute them. Local men attended to this for five years and the state then took up the work covering a period of five or six years.

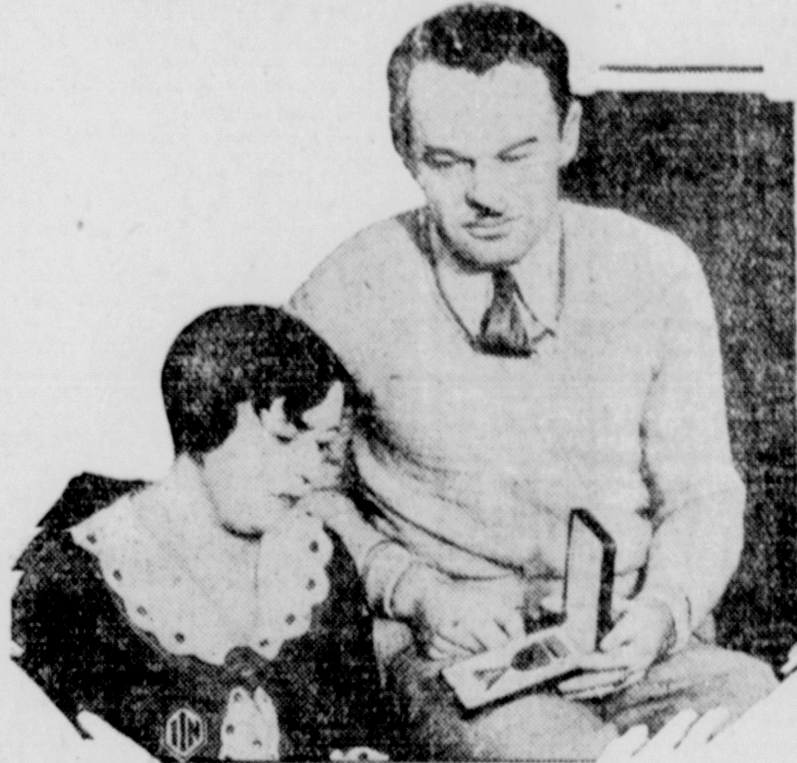

Local men watched the waters and when they saw the bass come up on the apron of the Gull lake dam, they notified the State Game and Fish Commission and the crews would come up immediately. They would hire one or two local men to assist. The fingerlings would be seined and placed in live boxes. Then from these boxes they would be transferred to the cans of the truck and immediate distribution would be under way, followed by the planting in the lakes and with but a small loss.

Telling It With a Medal

The Nicaraguan Government took this means of telling Charles V. Frith of its appreciation of his services while a staff sergeant aviator with the U. S. Marine Corps during the Sando revolution. Frith is holding the medal presented to him, while Mrs. Frith looks admiringly on. The decoration was presented "in recognition of the exceptional services rendered the Republic."

This year there are no bass for distribution, because of the heavy withdrawals of water from Gull lake. One-half mile of mud flats at Winnibigoshish is convincing evidence of the damaging effect of the present upper river system. Tons of dead fish on Sandy lake, what remains of it, drives home the conviction that the system must be changed and brought into harmony with present day conditions. The destruction of wild rice and the effect of its loss on ducks brings the question home to sportsmen. The Indians who gather the wild rice as part of their occupation are affected.

We quote items in a letter from Benn Wagner of Pequot, Minn., as follows:

"In the spring observers told of seeing thousands of dead fish. One man tells of 'tens' in the overflow in the channel between Whitefish and Rush lakes; another states there were hundreds in a bay of Big Whitefish, many of them he says, were black bass as long as his hand; another tells of hundreds of dead fish along the shore of another bay of the same lake, which is shut off this fall again."

"At Rush lake, opposite Fisherman's Point, we found the bay entirely dry, with literally hundreds of young crappies, sunfish and pike dead.

"At Island View Lodge we found proposed minimum stages are reached in each of them; only such amount of water should be permitted to run off as will satisfy the minimum requirements of any contract obligations, if any, that were made between the U. S. government and other parties at the time of the creation of their reservoirs.

(9) In the event of the establishing of the proposed new minimum levels in these reservoirs, the Minnesota Lake Levels Association strenuously objects to a fixed minimum discharge from these reservoirs which will at any time reduce these lakes below the fixed minimum level.

COOKING CROQUETTES AND ROASTING COFFEE HAVE MUCH IN COMMON

Success Depends Upon the Rule—A Little at a Time

Careful cooks do not crowd too many croquettes into the hot fat because they lower the temperature and then absorb grease. Cooking a few at a time prevents this.

In roasting coffee there is similar difficulty when too much is roasted at once. It is impossible to control the heat and often, as a result, part of the batch is overdone and part underdone. This causes variation in flavor.

Hills Bros., following the rule in the croquette recipe, roast only a few pounds of coffee at a time by their patented, continuous process—Controlled Roasting. There is no variation in the roast because there is accurate control of the heat, also of the flow of coffee through the roasters. A rare, uniform flavor is developed such as no other coffee has.

Grocers everywhere sell Hills Bros. Coffee in vacuum cans that keep it fresh. Air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is removed from the cans when they are packed, and kept out. Ordinary cans, even if air-tight, do not keep coffee fresh. Ask for Hills Bros. Coffee by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.

tabulating these higher minimum levels.

We also wish to quote the following as part of a letter to the secretary of this organization from Congressman Knutson of this district: "We have a resolution agreed to and signed by all Minnesota senators and representatives, except Nolan who is in Panama but who will be with us heart and soul as he went on record for us at the Brainerd meeting, agreeing to stand by the bill as a unit." By bill is meant Bill No. H. R. 15600 as introduced in the house by Congressman Knutson and bill S-5637 as introduced in the senate by Senator Shipstead.

These letters, resolutions and general backing can mean only one thing, that the state of Minnesota is united in backing these two bills as above referred to, and if not passed see great damage to the Minnesota tourist business, which according to the Ten Thousand Lakes Association amounts to $88,000,000 per year.

In taking your preliminary notice by numbers we offer the following:

(1) Proposed legislation as follows: H. R. 15600 as introduced in the house; S. 5637 as introduced in the senate.

The levels shown in these bills were agreed upon with much deliberation through the efforts of interested citizens who live on these lakes, who know the local conditions, cooperating with Congressman Knutson and the officers of the Minnesota Lake Levels Association, who are representative of all sections of the reservoir system. The minimum figures were placed as low as possible taking local conditions into consideration, namely:

1. That millions of fish shall not be land locked in pools and freeze out or die by reasons of excessive withdrawals of water from these reservoirs.

2. That people owning lands on these lakes may be able to have docks of reasonable length and proper swimming beaches.

3. That channels between various of these reservoir lakes shall be navigable.

4. That U. S. Mail service inaugurated by the government on these lakes might be able to function properly.

5. That public health may be protected from stagnant waters and drying wells.

6. That the scenic grandeur of this wonderful region shall be preserved.

7. That spawning beds for fish life and breeding grounds for wild fowl may be preserved.

8. That local investment of millions of dollars may be preserved for the good of the entire people of this area and the millions of visitors who annually come here for rest and recreation, and still provide the largest possible storage of water for navigation purposes.

The only maximum that is asked to be lowered is Pine which is mentioned in item (3).

(2) The effect on navigation of curtailing the capacities of the reservoirs.

(a) As far as navigation is concerned between the reservoirs and Minneapolis, we know of no one who asks for it or where it is a factor, there being practically no navigation.

(b) In a letter to F. N. Russell, secretary of this association, dated on Dec. 26, 1930, from Lieut. Col. Willing of the War Department, he advised the following: "Using the minimum stages as suggested in your letter (Winnibigoshish 6 feet, Leech 1 foot, Pokegama 6 feet, Pine 11 feet, Sandy 7 feet, Gull 5 feet), with maximums as now existing except Pine, at which reservoir a 16-foot maximum is assumed, the total reservoir capacity would be 63.95 billion cubic feet."

The figures we have from the War Department for the last five years at no time show a storage of over 48.825 billion cubic feet, which is considerably less than the storage capacity as would be established under this bill.

In 1926 the War Department records showed an increase of 9.4 billion cubic feet in stored water over 1925.

In 1927 an increase of 8.575 billion cubic feet.

In 1928 an increase of 8.3 billion cubic feet.

In 1929 a decrease of 24.18 billion cubic feet.

In 1930 to Nov. 1, 1930, a decrease of 11.295 billion cubic feet.

In regard to the effect of navigation below Minneapolis we have been advised by Congressman Knutson, and we have read many articles in the newspapers quoting Gen. Brown of the War Department to the effect that the dams of the nine-foot channel when completed, will require much less water than in the past from the reservoir lakes.

"Mr. W. H. Schram says: 'I went down to the overflow at the mouth of Pine River today and saw thousands of dead game fish where the water had dried up.'"

The following were passed by the Board of Directors of the Isaak Walton League at Minneapolis Friday, December 5, 1930:

We demand for the upper Mississippi lakes a stage of water subject to the least fluctuation that will carry a maximum water area and that will not fall to a level which will leave bays and sloughs with fish to die as a result of winter suffocation or summer evaporation.

We are also showing Col. Willing photographs taken from an airplane showing many bays landlocked in Whitefish lake. In the spring thousands of dead fish will be found in them frozen to death through the winter by the low existing levels of the lakes. We could go on writing pages on this same condition in many places but feel as though the above is absolute proof that millions of fish are being slaughtered in all the reservoir lakes.

(8) The question as to the amount of discharge which should be permitted during the period required to fill these reservoirs from the present minimum levels to the proposed new minimum level is one that depends largely on the precipitation this year. The reservoirs at this time are all empty and should be closed until the

WINDY CITY GIVES O.G.s. BIG PLURALITY
IN RIPLEY'S NEWEST CIGARETTE TASTE-TEST

By ROBERT RIPLEY, Himself

It didn't take Chicago long to decide which cigarette it likes best. I got the answer in six hours.

I arrived at the Windy City at high noon... with a supply of the four leading brands of cigarettes... masked with black bands to conceal the names.

Before the close of the afternoon I had given the "taste-test" to every rank and file in the town... from the cattle herders at the stock-yards to movie fans in the loop.

And as usual, O. G. ran away with the vote.

Take it from me... or leave it... so far, I haven't been able to make OLD GOLD lose.

How the Nation Viewed the Commission Report

LEADING newspapers of the nation commented editorially on the Wickersham report as follows:

New York Herald Tribune—"The fairness, clarity and general excellence of the report make all the more regrettable Mr. Hoover's hasty and inexact comment upon it. He completely misreads the import of the document and refuses to digest the appalling evidence it presents or to reflect upon the recommendations it bases thereon. This is certainly not the attitude of an engineer toward an experiment. It seems to us an unfortunate example to set before the nation."

New York World—"No set of men who believed that the eighteenth amendment could certainly, or would even probably succeed, would have been specific in preparing plans for supplementing it. They all take a defeatist view of the noble experiment."

New York Times—"The great controversy will be centered about the sole part which Mr. Hoover opposes  by his repudiation of the most salient thing in the prohibition report, he has brought the irrepressible conflict nearer."

The New York Telegram's banner headline, "Wickersham Body for Dry Law, but Majority Favors Revision," was followed by the parenthetical phrase ("Figure it out for yourself, we can't.—Editor.")

St. Paul Pioneer Press—"The report drives home the fact once more that prohibition is irremediably a political issue; it can be settled in one way and one way alone, and that is a counting of heads. The people will have to decide the issue in accordance with their wishes for there is no body of experts that can arrive at some inescapable conclusion."

Minneapolis Tribune—"The prohibition question is certain to be a main issue in either the next presidential campaign or soon thereafter, but inasmuch as the Wickersham report, insofar as it can be called a report, is all things to all men, it is not likely to have any deciding bearing on the question."

Minneapolis Journal—"Let us congratulate ourselves that a shift to a permissive amendment requires not only the vote of the Wickersham commission, but the votes of thirty-six of the forty-eight states."

Minneapolis Star—"Now that the law enforcement commission report on prohibition has been made public with diverse and sundry supplemental reports by individual members, it seems at first glance that it may be necessary to appoint another commission to find out what the first one means."

Atlanta (Ga.) Constitution—"In all seriousness we cannot see public opinion enlightened by the categorical conclusions and recommendations presented by the commission. The mountain has labored and produced a mouse."

San Francisco Chronicle—"In the confusion and conflict of their opinions the commissioners reflect the public confusion and conflict over the 'noble experiment.' If the Wickersham commission was expected to be the Moses to lead this nation out of the wilderness, it failed to find inspiration."

Cleveland (Ohio) Plain Dealer—"Victory on Capitol Hill goes to the Dryson Points . . . The White House adopts the Wickersham conclusions without accepting their underlying tissue of doubts."

Wickersham Commission Report

THE Wickersham Commission report on prohibition is one that requires deep study, almost as deep as that devoted by the members of the commission to their study of the subject. There are discrepancies between the separate reports of the commissioners and the commission's general findings.

The report was supposed to be a guide to lawmakers, but it is one that will need an expert to construe its recommendations.

In America we find three camps of thought regarding prohibition, the out and out dry, the wet and the modificationist. The Wickersham report did not, in a general way, propose repeal of the 18th Amendment. But, according to one of its members, Colonel Henry W. Anderson, there was shown a sentiment for revision. Five members favor modification of the amendment now and four others favor giving the amendment further trial and then modify it if it does not succeed. According to such a lineup of opinion, the Wickersham report has a sentiment for modification.

A study of the report shows it does very little to solve the prohibition question. It seems to leave the whole question open and the report as well as the whole question will continue a matter of debate and discussion. After spending a half million dollars for this commission to formulate a report, the nation gets nothing definite except divided opinions.

Federal Prison Farm

If Brainerd were to make as determined a fight for a federal prison farm as it is conducting for the minimum lake levels, then it will secure such an institution, one which will involve an expenditure for buildings and improvements estimated at a quarter of a million dollars.

When the news was made public by the United Press, the Brainerd Dispatch was quick to mention the desirability of Brainerd as a location for such a federal institution and the news reports sent out by United Press from St. Paul this morning accorded Brainerd equal mention with Stillwater as being active contenders for the federal institution.

The Chamber of Commerce of Brainerd and other organizations should enter actively in a campaign to get this improvement for Brainerd.

THE average man has no desire to interfere with gunmen when they put one of their kind "on the spot" and wipe him out. But machine gun fire and shotgun slugs have a way of spattering beyond "the spot" and hitting innocent bystanders. And then every organized government has the machinery of law necessary to try gunmen offenders, convict and legally execute them. It seems almost unbelievable, but America is harboring an underworld that makes and executes its own edicts and is as far removed from the "upper world" as darkness from light.

THE Tradewind belied its name. It made a brave attempt at a European flight and then vanished in the ocean depths.

Influences on Prices

As Macaulay said, with the exception of the alphabet and the printing press, no set of inventions has tended to alter civilization so much as those which abridge distance—such as the railway, the steamship, the telephone, the telegraph, and that conveyor of information and advertisements, the newspaper. These all tend, therefore, to decrease prices.

Influences on Prices

As Macaulay said, with the exception of the alphabet and the printing press, no set of inventions has tended to alter civilization so much as those which abridge distance—such as the railway, the steamship, the telephone, the telegraph, and that conveyor of information and advertisements, the newspaper. These all tend, therefore, to decrease prices.

E. M. B. A. BOWLERS BREAK THREE PIN RECORDS AT VAN'S

HANSEN SHATTERS INDIVIDUAL COUNT WITH 682 TOTAL

TEAM ROLLS HIGH SINGLE GAME, 1055, HIGH THREE-GAME, 2927 PINS

DEFEATS LIVELY AUTO CO., FORMER HOLDERS OF RECORD LOCALLY

With all players rolling high, consistent scores, the E. M. B. A. crashed their way last night to a two-game win over Lively Auto Co. and established three new pin records at Van's alleys.

These records were set by "those E. M. B. A. boys" last night, smashing those previously held by Lively's:

High single game team score of 1055 rolled in the first game.

High three-game team total, 2927.

High single player count for three games, 682.

Record holder of high total for three games now rests in the hands of "Speck" Hansen. The Chesterfield salesman cracked the pins consistently all night, rolling 230 in the first game, 236 in the second and 216 in the third.

The struggle between the E. M. B. A. and Lively's was terrific. The E. M. B. A. won the first with the record count of 1055, lost the second when Lively's hit 1019 and won the third game by only five pins.

Cully Nelson rolled the high single game with a 248 count.

Sid Elde was high for Lively's with a 233 single game and a 624 total.

In the "B" League, the Study Club took three games from the Monument Works, winning the second by only one pin. Dr. Hawkinson rolled high for the Study Club, while Gustafson was high for the Monument men.

Frank J. Hinze May Succeed Veigel as Bank Commissioner

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—(UP)—The St. Paul Daily News said today that it had learned that Frank J. Hinze, former St. Cloud banker, will succeed A. J. Veigel as state banking commissioner.

Governor Floyd E. Olson refused to affirm or deny the report which was said to have been given out by sources close to him.

Hinze was a federal bank examiner for five years and has served the state in the same capacity for another five years.

Telegrams and letters urging the appointment of Hinze have been received by the score, the governor's office reported.

Washington, Jan. 21.—(UP)—The Rev. Bert N. Nelson, Minneapolis missionary, captured several months ago by Chinese bandits, has been transferred by his captors from Hupeh province to Mahwei province, American Consul General Frank P. Lockhart reported today to the state department.

Lockhart said he again had urged Chinese military authorities to seek Nelson's release.

RUSSELLS IN FINE CONDITION MEET BATTLERS FROM DOWN-RIVER THURSDAY

The Russell Creamery quintet was in the pink of condition today for the invasion tomorrow evening of Little Falls stars.

The cage game will be played at the high school gym at 8 o'clock. The Russell team is out for its second win of the season, having won one and lost one so far this season. Brainerd took its win from Little Falls at the Falls gym by a count of 40 to 37 and a team comprised of Coach Burnett and former high school stars are coming seeking revenge. The locals lost in the second game of the season to Tower here Saturday night.

Manager Peterson has booked the Crosby Inland Steel Rangers for a game here February 5.

Record for Klein

The recently released records made during the 1930 baseball season reveal the fact that Charley "Chuck" Klein of the Philadelphia Nationals broke a long-standing record. Klein compiled a total of 44 assists, exceeding the mark of 39 for outfielders made by Mike Mitchell of the Cincinnati Reds in 1907.

Glenna Collett First Long-Hitting Golfer

Glenna Collett was one of the first long-hitting women golfers. Some years ago she got the only three ever made on the 540-yard sixteenth hole at Belleair. And this hole has been played repeatedly by the best of the pros, including Hagen, Horton Smith, Sarazen, Armour, Farrell and others.

Another remarkable feature connected with Glenna Collett's game is the almost impossible job of getting her to talk about it. She comes closer to leaving all her golf on the golf course than any living champion. As Collett's suggests that may be one reason why her keenness for the game remains and why she so seldom runs into stale spots through a championship week. Most staleness results from worry, bother and fretting between contests.

Taking No Chance

Catcher Truck Hannah of the Los Angeles Angels is one player who doesn't like to sign contracts, so the story goes, and an amusing tale is told of his method of handling finances.

Strange as it may seem, Hannah went through a whole season without cashing one of his pay checks. The club treasurer, who was quite disturbed over the incident, sought to ascertain the reason and went to Hannah for an explanation.

"Oh," said Truck, "I was savin' the dough for this winter."

Falcons Troupe Quakers (By United Press)

Montreal's Les Canadiens and Boston's Bruins, leaders in the international and American groups, respectively, of the National Hockey League increased their advantage last night with victories.

The Canadiens took a hard-fought, over-time decision from the New York Rangers by a score of 3 to 2, while the Bruins trimmed the Ottawa Senators, 4 to 2.

Gus Rivers, "baby" of the Canadiens, scored the winning goal after five minutes of over-time play. The Canadiens played without the services of the brilliant Howie Morenz, who was injured Saturday.

Weiland, with two goals, led the Bruins' attack.

Eddie Goodfellow, leading scorer of the league, added two more goals to his season's total as the Detroit Falcons walloped the Philadelphia Quakers, 5 to 2. Detroit scored twice in the opening period and three times in the second frame.

LADY BOWLER SETS HIGH MARK

MISS MARCELLA KAMPMANN CRASHES MAPLES FOR 256 COUNT

In a practice game at Van's alleys last evening, Miss Marcella Kampmann established a single-game, all-time record for lady bowlers in Brainerd when she crashed the maples for the big count of 256.

She filled every frame except the ninth. She started the game with eight straight strikes, got nine pins in the ninth and a spare in the tenth. The ninth frame was a bit of hard luck, the ball striking the king-pin for what looked like a sure strike, but one pin remained standing, which Miss Kampmann barely missed for the only open frame of the game.

The score sets a great mark for lady bowlers and will in all probability stand for some time.

E. M. B. A. BOWLERS BREAK THREE PIN RECORDS AT VAN'S

HANSEN SHATTERS INDIVIDUAL COUNT WITH 682 TOTAL

TEAM ROLLS HIGH SINGLE GAME, 1055, HIGH THREE-GAME, 2927 PINS

DEFEATS LIVELY AUTO CO., FORMER HOLDERS OF RECORD LOCALLY

With all players rolling high, consistent scores, the E. M. B. A. crashed their way last night to a two-game win over Lively Auto Co. and established three new pin records at Van's alleys.

These records were set by "those E. M. B. A. boys" last night, smashing those previously held by Lively's:

High single game team score of 1055 rolled in the first game.

High three-game team total, 2927.

High single player count for three games, 682.

Record holder of high total for three games now rests in the hands of "Speck" Hansen. The Chesterfield salesman cracked the pins consistently all night, rolling 230 in the first game, 236 in the second and 216 in the third.

The struggle between the E. M. B. A. and Lively's was terrific. The E. M. B. A. won the first with the record count of 1055, lost the second when Lively's hit 1019 and won the third game by only five pins.

Cully Nelson rolled the high single game with a 248 count.

Sid Elde was high for Lively's with a 233 single game and a 624 total.

In the "B" League, the Study Club took three games from the Monument Works, winning the second by only one pin. Dr. Hawkinson rolled high for the Study Club, while Gustafson was high for the Monument men.

Frank J. Hinze May Succeed Veigel as Bank Commissioner

St. Paul, Jan. 21.—(U.P.)—The St. Paul Daily News said today that it had learned that Frank J. Hinze, former St. Cloud banker, will succeed A. J. Veigel as state banking commissioner. Governor Floyd B. Olson refused to affirm or deny the report which was said to have been given out by sources close to him.

Hinze was a federal bank examiner for five years and has served the state in the same capacity for another five years.

Telegrams and letters urging the appointment of Hinze have been received by the score, the governor's office reported.

Captured Missionary is Transferred by Bandits to Another Locality

Washington, Jan. 21.—(U.P.)—The Rev. Bert N. Lockhart reported today to the state department. Lockhart said he again had urged Chinese military authorities to seek Nelson's release.

RUSSELLS IN FINE CONDITION MEET BATTLERS FROM DOWN-RIVER THURSDAY

The Russell Creamery quintet was in the pink of condition today for the invasion tomorrow evening of Little Falls stars.

The cage game will be played at the high school gym at 8 o'clock. The Russell team is out for its second win of the season, having won one and lost one so far this season. Brainerd took its win from Little Falls at the Falls gym by a count of 40 to 37 and a team comprised of Coach Burnett and former high school stars are coming seeking revenge. The locals lost in the second game of the season to Tower here Saturday night.

Manager Peterson has booked the Crosby Inland Steel Rangers for a game here February 5.

Record for Klein

The recently released records made during the 1930 baseball season reveal the fact that Charley "Chuck" Klein of the Philadelphia Nationals broke a long-standing record. Klein compiled a total of 44 assists, exceeding the mark of 39 for outfielders made by Mike Mitchell of the Cincinnati Reds in 1907.

Glenna Collett First Long-Hitting Golfer

Glenna Collett was one of the first long-hitting women golfers. Some years ago she got the only three ever made on the 540-yard sixteenth hole at Belleair. And this hole has been played repeatedly by the best of the pros, including Hagen, Horton Smith, Sarazen, Armour, Farrell and others.

Another remarkable feature connected with Glenna Collett's game is the almost impossible job of getting her to talk about it. She comes closer to leaving all her golf on the golf course than any living champion. As Collett's suggests that may be one reason why her keenness for the game remains and why she so seldom runs into stale spots through a championship week. Most staleness results from worry, bother and fretting between contests.

Taking No Chance

Catcher Truck Hannah of the Los Angeles Angels is one player who doesn't like to sign contracts, so the story goes, and an amusing tale is told of his method of handling finances.

Strange as it may seem, Hannah went through a whole season without cashing one of his pay checks. The club treasurer, who was quite disturbed over the incident, sought to ascertain the reason and went to Hannah for an explanation.

"Oh," said Truck, "I was savin' the dough for this winter."

Falcons Troupe Quakers

Montreal's Les Canadiens and Boston's Bruins, leaders in the international and American groups, respectively, of the National Hockey League increased their advantage last night with victories.

The Canadiens took a hard-fought, over-time decision from the New York Rangers by a score of 3 to 2, while the Bruins trimmed the Ottawa Senators, 4 to 2.

Gus Rivers, "baby" of the Canadiens, scored the winning goal after five minutes of over-time play. The Canadiens played without the services of the brilliant Howie Morenz, who was injured Saturday.

Weiland, with two goals, led the Bruins' attack.

Eddie Goodfellow, leading scorer of the league, added two more goals to his season's total as the Detroit Falcons walloped the Philadelphia Quakers, 5 to 2. Detroit scored twice in the opening period and three times in the second frame.

LADY BOWLER SETS HIGH MARK

MISS MARCELLA KAMPMANN CRASHES MAPLES FOR 256 COUNT

In a practice game at Van's alleys last evening, Miss Marcella Kampmann established a single-game, all-time record for lady bowlers in Brainerd when she crashed the maples for the big count of 256.

She filled every frame except the ninth. She started the game with eight straight strikes, got nine pins in the ninth and a spare in the tenth. The ninth frame was a bit of hard luck, the ball striking the king-pin for what looked like a sure strike, but one pin remained standing, which Miss Kampmann barely missed for the only open frame of the game.

The score sets a great mark for lady bowlers and will in all probability stand for some time.

CITY

Superior, Wis., Jan. 21.—(AP)—Prohibition agents raided the lodges of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Loyal Order of Moose here today arresting three men and confiscating a large quantity of liquor.

Dry agents said the seizure of liquor was the largest ever made in Superior.

In the raid on the Eagles hall, agents said they confiscated 180 gallons of alleged moonshine whiskey, 120 gallons of beer mash, 791 pints of home brew beer, 110 quarts of whiskey, 12 gallons of alcohol, 17 quarts of gin and 20 quarts of brandy.

At the Moose headquarters 40 gallons of alleged moonshine whiskey was seized and 15 gallons of home brew mash.

John Roller was arrested at the Moose hall. He was taken before U. S. Commissioner C. W. Bishop and arraigned on charges of illegal manufacture and possession of liquor.

Charles E. Raper and Martin Nelson, arrested at the Eagles home, were charged with sale and possession of liquor and with maintaining a nuisance.

Agents said the raids were made after investigators had made purchases of more than 300 gallons of liquor at the two places.

The raids on the two lodges were the first ever conducted here though one member of the Moose was arrested and fined on a liquor charge after a police investigation several years ago.

Full Regalia for Warden

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 21.—(AP)—York County's new warden will wear full Old Country regalia when he is inducted into office this month. The costume of cocked hat, silk gown, and broad-brimmed chain of office never has been worn in Ontario before by a county warden, so far as is known. Years ago, wardens wore the gown and cocked hat, but the custom died out until it was restored a few years ago by the warden of Simcoe. The chain of office is a new departure, however.

Father's Little Weakness

Father and son were out walking when the former stooped and picked up a rather nicely made man's glove. "There's nothing like honesty," he said to the boy. "I will place it on this railing, and perhaps the owner will return for it."

They continued their walk, but a little while later the man picked up another glove.

"Goodness me," he exclaimed, "this is the neighbor to the other glove!" He tried it on. "And my size, too. Hurry back, Sonny, and fetch the other glove."

TEAMS TO PLAY FOR SHILLALAH

Notre Dame and Northwestern to Battle for Trophy.

There is the "Little Brown Jug," emblematic of years of rivalry between Minnesota and Michigan and also the "Old Oaken Bucket" for which the huskies of Purdue and Indiana risk their necks annually. These two now have a companion.

Kenneth L. ("Tug") Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern university, presented Knute K. Rockne with an ancient shillalah as a trophy to be fought for on the football field in the years to come between the two schools. The presentation was made at the annual banquet of the Notre Dame club of Chicago at the Lake Shore A. C.

In presenting the shillalah to Rockne Wilson stated that Northwestern and Notre Dame were building a splendid rivalry and tradition on the football field. He declared that this should be perpetuated and offered the shillalah as a trophy. The shillalah is over one hundred years old and came from Ireland.

Liberty Magazine conducted a straw vote among its employees to determine the most popular sport from the standpoint of a spectator. A surprising result developed. Out of 72 votes cast for all sports, 43 favored college football and only nine baseball!

According to that poll a literary atmosphere is surely fatal to baseball, for the proportion is not at all consistent with the poor attendance last season announced by the National league.

The fact that the ballots were cast when baseball was in retirement and football was at its peak most likely accounts for the strange discrepancy.

There is, nevertheless, a well-defined belief that baseball among the youngsters is giving way in favor of other seasonal pastimes. Its failure to interest college undergraduates has long been a matter of discussion.

Cy Perkins, recently released, was credited with having developed Ed Rommel into a knuckle-ball pitcher for the A's.

When Andy Cohen, former second baseman of the New York Giants, was doing a turn in vaudeville, he told a story of a time when he was sent in as a pinch-hitter at Buffalo in the International league.

"Cohen batting for Murphy," was the announcement, followed by a shout from the stands:

"Flanagan leave the park."
If Flanagan had been at one of the games in the Giants-Reds series recently at Cincinnati he would have had to leave the park, for this announcement was made:

"Rosenberg running for Hogan."

Ed Strangler Lewis, former heavy-weight champion of the world, made more money than any prize fighter, not excepting Jack Dempsey of million-dollar gate fame. Even after he blew the title Lewis was a bigger card than ever, performing almost nightly all around the world, including a trip to Australia. Lewis now confines his operations to western territory.

Dr. C. M. Dannelly, president of Kentucky Wesleyan university, announced that the university will discontinue football as an intercollegiate activity and in its place will substitute a program of compulsory physical education for every student. Intercollegiate basketball and other sports will be promoted, he said, intimating that football was discontinued because the school cannot afford the expense of supporting a team.

Waite Hoyt, having set 15 victories as his 1931 goal, already has gone in to training.

Since the close of the baseball season, the Tiger pitcher has been living on one meal a day and exercising regularly. As a result he weighs less than he has for several years.

Word was received here recently from Johnny Lodwick, member of the St. Petersburg Chamber of Commerce, that Crescent park, where the Yankees do their training in Florida, has been named Miller Huggins field in memory of the late manager of the Yankees. In addition to training the Yankees there every spring, Huggins lived at St. Petersburg and owned considerable property.

The Arlington Classic, a gallop at a mile and a quarter, will be the richest three-year-old race of the 1931 turf season as a result of a decision to increase the added money value to $70,000, a boost of $10,000.

Roy Carruthers, secretary and general manager of the Arlington Park Jockey club, said the race should gross more than $85,000, perhaps $90,000, with $70,000 going to the winner, $7,000 to the second horse, $3,000 for the third and $1,500 to the fourth.

A fan magazine says of a character man that "he registers agony better than any other actor on the screen." Possibly a pro wrestler at some earlier point in his career.

John "Monk" Campbell, Alabama's spinning quarterback, is said by Dixie sports writers to be the lowest running back ever seen in the Southern conference. Campbell never straightens up when carrying the ball, not even when he has broken into the open.

France Honors Lindbergh

The decoration, which is the highest that can be given by the French Government, was bestowed on the famous aviator at the French Embassy in Washington.

Johnny Evers Mistaken for Rookie by Pitcher

Johnny Evers, who has been doing some scouting for the Boston Braves, was looking over the Piedmont league recently and suddenly decided to work out a bit with the Greensboro team one afternoon. As he was pulling on an old uniform one of the pitchers noticed him and remarked:

"Rookie?"

"Yes," replied the former National league star.

"I think he found out who I was," laughingly remarked Johnny later, "because I did not see him any more during the afternoon."

British King Always Pays

It is the custom of the British royal family not to accept a service of any sort from a subject without recognition, either by a present or a check. Theater managers have been known to "forget" to send an account for seats occupied by the king and queen, but always they have been commanded to render it.

Mickey Cochrane Would Show $30,000 Damage

During the mid-summer series in Cleveland a foul ball off the bat of Mickey Cochrane of the Philadelphia A's caromed into the grandstand and is alleged to have resulted in the injury of two fair fanettes who were viewing the game.

Recently the two women filed suits totaling $30,000 against the Cleveland club for the damage they claimed to have received. News of the suit was brought to Cochrane by a newspaper man while the A's were making their last stand in Boston.

"Gee," said Mickey, "it wasn't worth it. They ought to see the damage I really could do for $30,000."

Defining Motion

The term "clockwise" refers to motion that is in the same direction as the movement of the hands of a clock. Anti-clockwise, therefore, means motion in the opposite direction to that of the hands of a clock.

Headlines Often Fail to Select Most Worthy

The headlines often fail to include the worthy in football. The most widely advertised lineman in the Western conference was Wade Woodworth, the Northwestern guard. He was spectacular. A red-headed giant, he played without headgear. He also played without stockings. Red-headed and bare-legged he was easily identified on the field. He was aggressive, and in practically every game there were arguments with Woodworth as the central figure.

But the best lineman that Northwestern had was Clark, the center. He was one of the best linemen of the year, and after the season, when Northwestern players and coaches voted on the most valuable player of the year, it was Clark, the center, and not Woodworth, the guard, or Frank Baker, the excellent end, who was elected most valuable.

New World's Champ

Those "75's" of Hockey

By HARDIN BURNLEY

---AURIEL JOLIAT---

BRILLIANT FORWARD OF LES CANADIENS
HOCKEY SEXTET--HE IS CONSIDERED BY MANY CRITICS TO BE GREATER THAN HOWIE MORENZ!

Of course, the World War featured its "Big Berthas" and other heavy guns, but it was the mainstay of the French light artillery—the "soixante quinze" (75)—that did so much to settle the issue on the western front most adaptable as the "75" is to all conditions—a pounding, plunging, pulverizing force whenever it was unlimbered.

Hockey has prototypes of those famous "75's" in Howie Morenz and Auriel Joliat of Les Canadiens, Montreal's flashing Red Devils. They wheel into action and keep pounding away from all angles in

"soixante quinze" battery fashion. In mobility, strength, indefatigability, and accuracy, they are human "75's" if ever there was such. While Morenz is a distinct veteran—he's been superstarring for fully six years—his partner, theinja-rubber-like Joliat is now approaching full flame as a Red Devil par excellence and is a comparative youngster. Many consider him and Morenz to be the big shots of Les Canadiens. That may be true, but they are with a team almost any member of which is apt to blaze at times as a hockey "75". Indeed, Les Canadiens resemble Notre Dame in more respects than

one. They call America's most famed football team the "Fighting Irish," and there are several Irishmen on it. The Canadiens are "Fighting French" and they have Morenz, a Swiss; the Mantha brothers—Sylvio and George; Italians; Des Rivieres (Gus Rivers of Minneapolis); a Swede; Hainsworth, an Englishman; and also Burke and McCaffrey on their rolls. The natives, however, are admirably represented by Joliat, "Battleship" Ledue, Pete Lepine, Larochelle, Nick Wasnie and one or two others.

And, by gar, how those "Rett Deffills" can play, eh bien!

Tiptop Shortstops

By HARDIN BURNLEY

THE Baseball Writers' Association of America has voted Joe Cronin the American League's most valuable player in 1930, the Washington shortstop getting 48 out of a possible 64 points, leading Al Simmons of the Athletics and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees by nine points each. Though many question the justice of this award (who would trade Simmons for Cronin?), none dispute the great ability of the peppy 24-year-old Senator who did so much to make his team the runner-up and a constant menace to the mighty Athletics. Cronin hit for .345 last season, scored 127 runs, drove in 119 others, made 203 hits, including 18 homers, and stole 15 bases. Joe dazzled on defense and was consistently reliable on handling everything that came his way. While many think Simmons was the league's most valuable player, all will agree that Cronin was its best shortstop. In 1929, Joe also did well but his showing was just so-so compared to what he did last year.

Prior to his acquisition by Washington in 1928, Cronin starred with Kansas City to which he had been farmed and released by Pittsburgh after a trial in 1925. Many twit Barney Dreyfuss for that deal, but it was no blunder. The Cronin of the 1925 Pirates and the Cronin of the 1930 Senators were as different as Sir Philip Soused and Sir Philip Sober. One was a comparatively raw rookie; the other is a well-seasoned youngster just hitting his real big league stride. He should have an even more scintillating season in 1931.

While Cronin was the leader among his league's shortfielders, Charley Gelbert was the best, perhaps, in that position in the National. He and Frankie Frisch constituted the keystone of the Cardinals' defense, and their timely hitting did much to help an offense which carried St. Louis to the pennant. Even in World Series defeat, Gelbert starred against the Athletics. Perhaps his proximity to such a wonder as Frisch helped to dwarf him slightly and so he did not stand out as conspicuously as Cronin. But Gelbert's a great s.s., and he should be that this year, too.

Charles E. Raper and Martin Nelson, arrested at the Eagles home, were charged with sale and possession of liquor and with maintaining a nuisance.

Agents said the raids were made after investigators had made purchases of more than 30 gallons of liquor at the two places.

The raids on the two lodges were the first ever conducted here though one member of the Moose was arrested and fined on a liquor charge after a police investigation several years ago.

Use of Capital Letter

"Good English for Every One" says that capital letters are used only in such words as are used in direct address. For example—"My mother and sister are coming. I told Mother to come."—Washington Star.

A correction of a last week's item. The Riverton high school basketball team played Brainerd's second team instead of first team Tuesday evening. It's a good thing it was the second team or our boys would not have been left to tell about it. B. H. S. was victorious by score of 33 to 16.

Mrs. Dan Peterson entertained the Lucky Lady club Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gibbs visited at Frank Miller's home Thursday.

Miss Shirley Norton attended a birthday at the Clarence Shepherd home Saturday.

Who's aching? Aitkin girls basketball team aching. They were defeated here by R. H. S. girls Friday night by a score of 35 to 39 in spite of the fact that one of R. H. S. forwards, Miss Florence Miller was injured and was out of the game a quarter, returning the last quarter with loud applause from the audience. But listen, this is only half of our story. B. H. S. boys were defeated by score of 27 to 10. Better luck next time boys. The game was well attended by both home folks and Aitkinists.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Gibbs called at Adam's Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Dan Peterson was a Brainerd shopper Tuesday.

Among the Brainerd shoppers Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Norton, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Norton.

If winter comes, can spring be far behind? It must be just around the corner, crows were seen in this vicinity Saturday, which is usually a sign of spring.

Full Regalia for Warden

Toronto, Ont., Jan. 21.—(U.P.)—York County's new warden will wear full Old Country regalia when he is inducted into office this month. The costume of cocked hat, silk gown, and broad-linked chain of office never has been worn in Ontario before by a county warden, so far as is known. Years ago, wardens wore the gown and cocked hat, but the custom died out until it was restored a few years ago by the warden of Simcoe. The chain of office is a new departure, however.

Father's Little Weakness

Father and son were out walking when the former stooped and picked up a rather nicely made man's glove. "There's nothing like honesty," he said to the boy. "I will place it on this railing, and perhaps the owner will return for it."

They continued their walk, but a little while later the man picked up another glove.

"Goodness me," he exclaimed, "this is the neighbor to the other glove!" He tried it on. "And my size, too. Hurry back, Sonny, and fetch the other glove."

Habit the Cable-Tow

Habit has been well described as a cable, weaving only a thread at a time, but at last so strong that it cannot easily be broken. Eliminate in yourself every weak and undesirable habit. Take a determined stand for everything which enlarges and ennobles your life. Resolve to live your highest possible life where you are today. Take stock of your habits. Character comes from repeated choice.

TEAMS TO PLAY FOR SHILLALAH

Notre Dame and Northwestern to Battle for Trophy.

There is the "Little Brown Jug," emblematic of years of rivalry between Minnesota and Michigan and also the "Old Oaken Bucket" for which the huskies of Purdue and Indiana risk their necks annually. These two now have a companion.

Kenneth L. ("Tug") Wilson, athletic director of Northwestern university, presented Knute K. Rockne with an ancient shillalah as a trophy to be fought for on the football field in the years to come between the two schools. The presentation was made at the annual banquet of the Notre Dame club of Chicago at the Lake Shore A. C.

In presenting the shillalah to Rockne Wilson stated that Northwestern and Notre Dame were building a splendid rivalry and tradition on the football field. He declared that this should be perpetuated and offered the shillalah as a trophy. The shillalah is over one hundred years old and came from Ireland.

Liberty Magazine conducted a straw vote among its employees to determine the most popular sport from the standpoint of a spectator. A surprising result developed. Out of 72 votes cast for all sports, 43 favored college football and only nine baseball!

According to that poll a literary atmosphere is surely fatal to baseball, for the proportion is not at all consistent with the poor attendance last season announced by the National league.

The fact that the ballots were cast when baseball was in retirement and football was at its peak most likely accounts for the strange discrepancy.

There is, nevertheless, a well-defined belief that baseball among the youngsters is giving way in favor of other seasonal pastimes. Its failure to interest college undergraduates has long been a matter of discussion.

Cy Perkins, recently released, was credited with having developed Ed Rommel into a knuckle-ball pitcher for the A's.

When Andy Cohen, former second baseman of the New York Giants, was doing a turn in vaudeville, he told a story of a time when he was sent in as a pinch-hitter at Buffalo in the International league.

"Cohen batting for Murphy," was the announcement, followed by a shout from the stands:

"Flanagan leave the park."

If Flanagan had been at one of the games in the Giants-Reds series recently at Cincinnati he would have had to leave the park, for this announcement was made:

"Rosenberg running for Hogan."

Ed Strangler Lewis, former heavyweight champion of the world, made more money than any prize fighter, not excepting Jack Dempsey of million-dollar gate fame. Even after he blew the title Lewis was a bigger card than ever, performing almost nightly all around the world, including a trip to Australia. Lewis now confines his operations to western territory.

Dr. C. M. Dannelly, president of Kentucky Wesleyan university, announced that the university will discontinue football as an intercollegiate activity and in its place will substitute a program of compulsory physical education for every student. Intercollegiate basketball and other sports will be promoted, he said, intimating that football was discontinued because the school cannot afford the expense of supporting a team.

Waite Hoyt, having set 15 victories as his 1931 goal, already has gone into training.

Since the close of the baseball season, the Tiger pitcher has been living on one meal a day and exercising regularly. As a result he weighs less than he has for several years.

Word was received here recently from Johnny Lodwick, member of the St. Petersburg Chamber of Commerce, that Crescent park, where the Yankees do their training in Florida, has been named Miller Huggins field in memory of the late manager of the Yankees. In addition to training the Yankees there every spring, Huggins lived at St. Petersburg and owned considerable property.

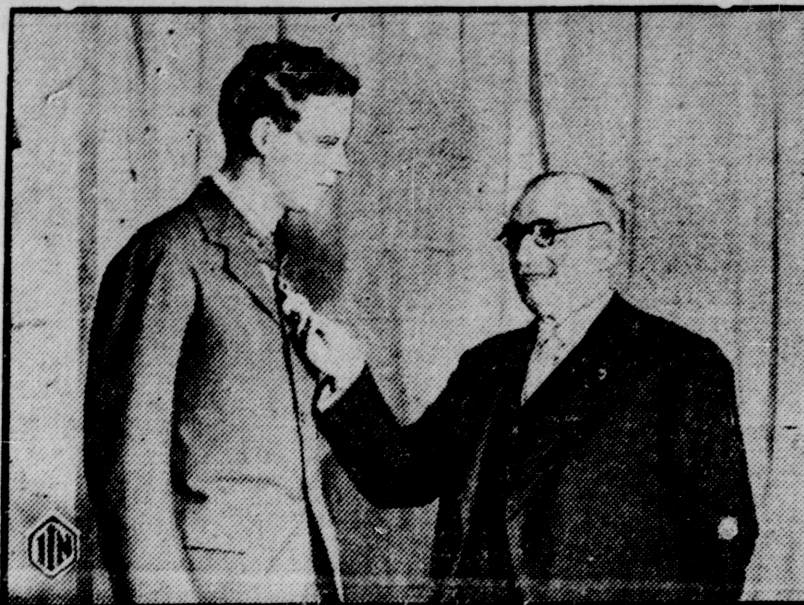

The Arlington Classic, a gallop at a mile and a quarter, will be the richest three-year-old race of the 1931 turf season as a result of a decision to increase the added money value to $70,000, a boost of $10,000.

Roy Carruthers, secretary and general manager of the Arlington Park Jockey club, said the race should gross more than $85,000, perhaps $90,000, with $70,000 going to the winner, $7,000 to the second horse, $3,000 for the third and $1,500 to the fourth.

A fan magazine says of a character man that "he registers agony better than any other actor on the screen." Possibly a pro wrestler at some earlier point in his career.

John "Monk" Campbell, Alabama's spinning quarterback, is said by Dixie sports writers to be the lowest running back ever seen in the Southern conference. Campbell never straightens up when carrying the ball, not even when he has broken into the open.

France Honors Lindbergh

M. Paul Claudel, French Ambassador to the United States, presenting Colonel Charles Lindbergh with the Cross of Commander of the French Legion of Honor. The decoration, which is the highest that can be given by the French Government, was bestowed on the famous aviator at the French Embassy in Washington.

Johnny Evers Mistaken for Rookie by Pitcher

Johnny Evers, who has been doing some scouting for the Boston Braves, was looking over the Piedmont league recently and suddenly decided to work out a bit with the Greensboro team one afternoon. As he was pulling on an old uniform one of the pitchers noticed him and remarked:

"Rookie?"

"Yes," replied the former National league star.

"I think he found out who I was," laughingly remarked Johnny later, "because I did not see him any more during the afternoon."

British King Always Pays

It is the custom of the British royal family not to accept a service of any sort from a subject without recognition, either by a present or a check. Theater managers have been known to "forget" to send an account for seats occupied by the king and queen, but always they have been commanded to render it.

Mickey Cochrane Would Show $30,000 Damage

During the mid-summer series in Cleveland a foul ball off the bat of Mickey Cochrane of the Philadelphia A's caromed into the grandstand and is alleged to have resulted in the injury of two fair fanettes who were viewing the game.

Recently the two women filed suits totaling $30,000 against the Cleveland club for the damage they claimed to have received. News of the suit was brought to Cochrane by a newspaper man while the A's were making their last stand in Boston.

"Gee," said Mickey, "it wasn't worth it. They ought to see the damage I really could do for $30,000."

Defining Motion

The term "clockwise" refers to motion that is in the same direction as the movement of the hands of a clock. Anti-clockwise, therefore, means motion in the opposite direction to that of the hands of a clock.

Headlines Often Fail to Select Most Worthy

The headlines often fail to include the worthy in football. The most widely advertised lineman in the Western conference was Wade Woodworth, the Northwestern guard. He was spectacular. A red-headed giant, he played without headgear. He also played without stockings. Red-headed and bare-legged he was easily identified on the field. He was aggressive, and in practically every game there were arguments with Woodworth as the central figure.

But the best lineman that Northwestern had was Clark, the center. He was one of the best linemen of the year, and after the season, when Northwestern players and coaches voted on the most valuable player of the year, it was Clark, the center, and not Woodworth, the guard, or Frank Baker, the excellent end, who was elected most valuable.

New World's Champ

Erwin Rudolph, of Chicago, who recaptured the laurels as world's picket billiard champ in closing play of the world tournament at New York. Rudolph defeated Ralph Greenleaf, who has been champion for many years, the score being 125 to 121.

Those "75's" of Hockey

By HARDIN BURNLEY

--AURIEL JOLIAT--

BRILLIANT FORWARD OF LES CANADIENS HOCKEY SEXTET--HE IS CONSIDERED BY MANY CRITICS TO BE GREATER THAN HOWIE MORENZ!

Of course, the World War featured its "Big Berthas" and other heavy guns, but it was the mainstay of the French light artillery—the "soixante quinze" (75)—that did so much to settle the issue on the western front most adaptable as the "75" is to all conditions—a pounding, plunging, pulverizing force whenever it was unlimbered.

Hockey has prototypes of those famous "75's" in Howie Morenz and Auriel Joliat of Les Canadiens, Montreal's flashing Red Devils. They wheel into action and keep pounding away from all angles in

"soixante quinze" battery fashion. In mobility, strength, indefatigability, and accuracy, they are human "75's" if ever there was such.

While Morenz is a distinct veteran—he's been superstarring for fully six years—his partner, theinja-rubber-like Joliat is now approaching full flame as a Red Devil par excellence and is a comparative youngster. Many consider him and Morenz to be the big shots of Les Canadiens. That may be true, but they are with a team almost any member of which is apt to blaze at times as a hockey "75". Indeed, Les Canadiens resemble Notre Dame in more respects than one. They call America's most famed football team the "Fighting Irish," and there are several Irishmen on it. The Canadiens are "Fighting French" and they have Morenz, a Swiss; the Mantha brothers—Sylvio and George; Italians; Des Rivieres (Gus Rivers of Minneapolis); a Swede; Hainsworth, an Englishman; also Burke and McCaffrey on their rolls.

The natives, however, are admirably represented by Joliat, "Battleship" Leduc, Pete Lepine, Laroche, Nick Wasnie and one or two others.

And, by gar, how those "Rett Deffils" can play, eh bien!

Tiptop Shortstops

By HARDIN BURNLEY

CHARLEY GELBERT. GREAT YOUNG ST. LOUIS STAR!

QUITE A TRIO!

"RABBIT" MARANVILLE—THIS ANCIENT YET SEEMS TO ACTUALLY IMPROVE WITH AGE!

JOE CRONIN.. OF THE SENATORS...THE MOST SENSATIONAL YOUNGSTER OF 1930!

THE Baseball Writers' Association of America has voted Joe Cronin the American League's most valuable player in 1930, the Washington shortstop getting 48 out of a possible 64 points, leading Al Simmons of the Athletics and Lou Gehrig of the Yankees by nine points each. Though many question the justice of this award (who would trade Simmons for Cronin?), none dispute the great ability of the peppy 24-year-old Senator who did so much to make his team the runner-up and a constant menace to the mighty Athletics. Cronin hit for .345 last season, scored 127 runs, drove in 119 others, made 203 hits, including 18 homers, and stole 15 bases. Joe dazzled on defense and was consistently reliable on handling everything that came his way. While many think Simmons was the league's most valuable player, all will agree that Cronin was its best shortstop. In 1929, Joe also did well but his showing was just so-so compared to what he did last year.

Prior to his acquisition by Washington in 1928, Cronin starred with Kansas City to which he had been traded and released by Pittsburgh after a trial in 1925. Many wit Barney Dreyfuss for that deal, but it was no blunder. The Cronin of the 1925 Pirates was as different as Sir Philip the Cronin of the 1930 Senators were as different as Sir Philip soused and Sir Philip sober. One was a comparatively raw rookie; the other is a well-seasoned youngster just hitting his real big league stride. He should have an even more scintillating season in 1931.

While Cronin was the leader among his league's shortfielders, Charley Gelbert was the best, perhaps, in that position in the National. He and Frankie Frisch constituted the keystone of the Cardinals' defense, and their timely hitting did much to help an offense which carried St. Louis to the pennant. Even in World Series defeat, Gelbert starred against the Athletics. Perhaps his proximity to such a wonder as Frisch helped to dwarf him slightly and so he did not stand out as conspicuously as Cronin. But Gelbert's a great s.s., and he should be that this year, too.

The youth said he did not know Miss Stein and that he took a purse from a lady's hand Saturday night and ran north to an alley between E and F streets and Fifth and Sixth avenues N. E. throwing away a vanity case, powder puff, check book, purse and keeping the money.

Later he took his wife and sister-in-law to the midnight show.

The young man who lives in Northeast said he had never been convicted of any crime before nor arrested except for taking a small quantity of watermelons when ten years old. He said he was put on probation at that time for 60 days.

FARM HEAD PLEADS FOR BETTER LAWS

Special Legislation Helps Others at
Expense of Farmer,
Olson Declares

Agriculture, long suffering from man-made adverse conditions, is threatened with annihilation unless an awakened public consciousness develops—a consciousness that will work to right the wrongs that are making paupers of American farmers. This was the keynote of the annual address of A. J. Olson, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, delivered at the opening of the federation's convention in St. Paul on January 20.

Voicing the fear that is uppermost in the minds of all thinking farmers, Mr. Olson said that the immediate future is even darker than the past has been. Pauperism and peasantry, alone await the farmer unless some very advanced changes are made in our systems of marketing, taxation, tariff, rural credits and transportation.

It is the custom of business and industry to fight their way out of depressions by paying less for the raw materials they use and demanding more for manufactured products. This is a double-barrelled blow to the farmer. He will be unable to survive a continuation of the ten years of battering he has just come through, the Farm Bureau president declares.

Having sounded a warning, Mr. Olson goes on to point a way out of the situation. His solutions, in a nutshell, are: for marketing, a closer hookup of producer and consumer, through the Federal Marketing act, which may need improvement; for taxation, removal of the tax on land and substitution of the income tax; for rural credits, a more liberal interpretation of the Federal Farm Loan act; for transportation, the building of an adequate system of inland waterways, such as the St. Lawrence canal and the 9-foot channel.

"This is an age of paradoxes—surpluses and starving people; greater bank deposits than ever before and more closed banks; goods piled high on merchants' shelves and none able to buy them; more wealth and more poverty; more millionaires and more paupers," Mr. Olson declared.

"These conditions are the result of an economic policy whereby undue favor is extended to special groups by legislation, such as tariff laws, transportation laws, marketing regulations and hundreds of other laws which were enacted for the benefit of special groups. And in the face of this it is often said that prosperity cannot be brought about by legislation. It is back of special, favorable legislation that these millions have been piled up. Farmers are not asking for anything that has not been given to others, and equal opportunity through legislation is all that is asked," the Farm Bureau chief asserts.

The Farm Bureau, state and national, is fighting for correction of these ills to agriculture. It needs the assistance and membership of every farmer, Mr. Olson declared.

LIKED AFRICA BUT GLAD TO BE HOME

William Barto Returns After Two
Years Absence Working in
South African Mine

TRAVELLED 18,000 MILES

Was One of Few White Men Working
in Copper Mine; 2,000
Natives Employed

Tanned from a life in the open, the picture of good health, William Barto, 30, was happy to be back in his home with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Peter Barto, Route 6, Brainerd, today after a two years absence which took him to Luanshya, Northern Rhodesia, South Africa, where he was engaged in diamond drilling for copper at the Roanantelys mine for the E. J. Longyear Exploration Co. of Minneapolis.

"I got a big kick out of the country for the first two months. The strangeness fascinated me. Then I became accustomed to the different types of people I met. I liked the place and the country but there is no place like the good old United States," Barto said.

The trips going and returning and his experiences at work in South Africa were liberal educations and thrills.

Barto left Brainerd on October 22, 1928, travelled to New York, sailed to Southampton, England, from there to Capetown, South Africa by way of the Maderia Island. He started the returned journey from Durban, South Africa on October 25, 1930 sailing by way of Singapore and Hong Kong.

He spent eight days in Japan sight-seeing. He landed at Kobe and went by train from Kobe to Kyoto, then to Nira and Tokyo, from Tokyo he sailed to Yokohama, then to Honolulu and from Honolulu to San Francisco where he took a train for Minneapolis and Brainerd.

Mr. Barto's desires when he returned to the United States were varied. He felt an exhilarating thrill at stepping on home soil again and excitedly walked down the streets of one of his country's cities. He ate with great relish American food again, long desired from African food which was short on greens and vegetables due chiefly to the heat of the climate.

His trip carried him a distance of 18,000 miles.

When Barto arrived at the mine there were 40 whites and 2,000 natives working. In the last year, however, the white population has increased.

The favorite mode of dress of the men is shorts because of the heat, the temperature remained stationary at 105 degrees for months at a time, Barto said.

Mr. Barto had the pleasure of seeing now and again another Brainerd man who was employed by the same company at Mufflura, Northern Rhodesia. His friend was Robert Peterson who will work another two months under his contract in South Africa and then return to Brainerd.

Asked regarding the missionary work in that part, Mr. Barto said, "there are several missionaries there, and some natives like them and some don't. Some of them teach the natives so that they get 'wise' and they won't work and want more money. Some of them help the natives and others just the opposite."

Regarding sale of liquor he said, "it is open country and they have whiskey, but it is very expensive. The natives make their own Kafir beer. There is little drunkenness."

Asked as to the British rule over there and whether they held much authority over them, he said "They hold quite a bit of authority. The natives all have to work under the British flag."

"As to food there was not much variety, there was no ice and it was hard to keep any vegetables. The only ones we had were those raised in a small vegetable garden. Our water was warm all the time, and we carried it in bags.

"We were in the wilderness, so we had no pleasures such as we have here, however in the larger cities they have the talkies, etc., mostly American films. The natives do not show much interest in them. We lived in huts built of clay. There are no buildings of frame because the ants eat the foundations," he said.

Regarding wages of natives over there he said, "they are paid about 10c a day or $4.00 a month. We had five servants with each train outfit, and each one of us had a house servant who did the work, our washing, kept the house clean, etc. Their wants are few. For we Americans, the company figured it cost about $40 a month for each living expenses. Most of our food stuffs were imported from Capetown, that is, most of it except our meat."

Asked regarding peculiarities of the natives, as to superstition, etc., Mr. Barto said, "Yes, most of them are quite superstitious. They also like to stick to one line of trade or work and not change or go beyond that."

"How do the natives feel toward the United States, do they know anything about this country," he was asked. "No, they don't seem to know anything about it," he replied.

CHECK ARTISTS HIT CITY MERCHANTS

Business Men Warned Not to Accept
Checks Until Identification
Is Made

Police and bank officials alike in Brainerd today warned merchants of the city and others not to accept checks from strangers.

Demand identification when a person you do not know offers to pay by check. Get in touch with banks also to find out if the checks are legitimate, the business men were instructed.

The city police department and the sheriff's department are confronted with an epidemic of "bad" checks. Over $100 in forged and worthless checks have been passed on Brainerd stores since December.

One check artist passed a number of checks before business men found them of no worth. By that time he had left the city.

Another check artist has been posing as a salesman, cashing in on forged checks for "orders."

OBSERVE BIRTHDAY OF 18TH AMENDMENT

11th Anniversary Made Occasion of Program by
W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. met at its 11th birthday anniversary of the 18th amendment to the constitution, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. P. G. Fallquist, 315 South Ninth street. A fine program of songs, speeches and readings were given, with Mrs. Grondin presiding in her usual efficient manner.

The slogan of the W. C. T. U. for this year is "Observance and Enforcement—Not Repeal." The addresses, readings and songs, all emphasized this. Rev. W. R. Thomas spoke on Observance; Mrs. F. J. Zander on Enforcement; and Rev. E. A. Valiani on "No Repeal." Rev. J. R. Michaelson and Mrs. P. G. Fallquist each sang a beautiful solo, and duets were sung by Mrs. Axel Gustafson and Mrs. Fallquist, also Ruby and Ruth Fallquist. Four White Ribboners also sang a selection. Mrs. A. C. Erickson, Mrs. A. Gustafson and Mrs. Emma Wolhart each gave readings. Mrs. Axel Gustafson was chairman of the program committee.

Mrs. Mary Wolhart baked a lovely birthday cake and decorated it with 11 candles, which was served with refreshments at the close of the afternoon.

Accepts City Position

Instructions

Harry J. Johnson, assistant director of re-education, St. Paul, was a Brainerd visitor Tuesday afternoon. Accompanied by Arthur La Belle of the La Belle-McColl bureau, he visited Miss Lucille Avery, the Brainerd trainee recently assigned to the bureau.

Mr. La Belle had reported that Miss Avery was doing good work, showing marked adaptability to the course. After talking with her yesterday and noting her enthusiasm, Mr. Johnson said that he was well pleased with the young lady's evident ability to achieve success.

Fosston Columnist a Student
Ester Moen of Fosston, Minn., who has been with the bureau for 15 months, conducts a column in The Thirteen Towns, a weekly newspaper published at Fosston.

Mr. Moen, a U. of M. man, is enrolled with the La Belle-McColl Bureau for the course in magazine writing—and has had several of his articles accepted by Captain W. H. Fawcett's publication, "Modern Mechanics."

Moen Writes Scientific Book
During the past few months Mr. Moen has been writing a book, "Experiments With Vibration," which a queried New York publisher is interested in seeing when completed. The final preparation of manuscript is being handled by the bureau. In gathering material for his book, Mr. Moen found a 7,000 word French article on Power and Energy, written by Professor Boll of the University of Paris, which seemed to contain data which would assist the young Fosston author in his experiments. Mr. La Belle translated the article into English. Upon receipt of the completed work Mr. Moen wrote: "Well, that translation is dandy. From the very start, Professor Boll promises some 'eye-openers' regarding quantum, geometrical optics, and Newtonian mechanics."

Aitkin Trainee Producing
Alfred Villeneuve, Aitkin, who was assigned to the Bureau three months ago, reported on January 19 that he has started to earn money as a result of his work in the course.

The money taken from the purse amounting to $18.22 has not been recovered, Barnes stating he used it to pay off bills that he owed.

In his confession made to City Attorney D. H. Fullerton, Chief of Police Templeton and police officers Barnes stated he stole the purse because he was hard up and indebted for the board of himself and his family.

He said in his confession that he came to Brainerd on March 18, 1929, that he left Brainerd on August 26, 1929 for Cumberland, that he returned to Brainerd in October, 1929 and has remained here since. He said he was at times employed at the Paper Mill and worked on a truck hauling sand for four days last week.

The youth said he did not know Miss Stein and that he took a purse from a lady's hand Saturday night and ran north to an alley between E and F streets and Fifth and Sixth avenues N. E., throwing away a vanity case, powder, puff, check book, purse and keeping the money.

Later he took his wife and sister-in-law to the midnight show.

FARM HEAD PLEADS FOR BETTER LAWS

Special Legislation Helps Others at
Expense of Farmer,
Olson Declares

Agriculture, long suffering from man-made adverse conditions, is threatened with annihilation unless an awakened public consciousness develops—a consciousness that will work to right the wrongs that are making paupers of American farmers. This was the keynote of the annual address of A. J. Olson, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau, delivered at the opening of the federation's convention in St. Paul on January 20.

Voicing the fear that is uppermost in the minds of all thinking farmers, Mr. Olson said that the immediate future is even darker than the past has been. Pauperism and peasantry alone await the farmer unless some very advanced changes are made in our systems of marketing, taxation, tariff, rural credits and transportation.

It is the custom of business and industry to fight their way out of depressions by paying less for the raw materials they use and demanding more for manufactured products. This is a double-barrelled blow to the farmer. He will be unable to survive a continuation of the ten years of battering he has just come through, the Farm Bureau president declares.

Having sounded a warning, Mr. Olson goes on to point a way out of the situation. His solutions, in a nutshell, are: for marketing, a closer hookup of producer and consumer, through the Federal Marketing act, which may need improvement; for taxation, removal of the tax on land and substitution of the income tax; for rural credits, a more liberal interpretation of the Federal Farm Loan act; for transportation, the building of an adequate system of inland waterways, such as the St. Lawrence canal and the 9-foot channel.

"This is an age of paradoxes—surpluses and starving people; greater bank deposits than ever before and more closed banks; goods piled high on merchants' shelves and none able to buy them, more wealth and more poverty, more millionaires and more paupers," Mr. Olson declared. "These conditions are the result of an economic policy whereby undue favor is extended to special groups by legislation, such as tariff laws, transportation laws, marketing regulations and hundreds of other laws which were enacted for the benefit of special groups. And in the face of this it is often said that prosperity cannot be brought about by legislation. It is back of special, favorable legislation that these millions have been piled up. Farmers are not asking for anything that has not been given to others, and equal opportunity through legislation is all that is asked," the Farm Bureau chief asserts.

The Farm Bureau, state and national, is fighting for correction of these ills to agriculture. It needs the assistance and membership of every farmer, Mr. Olson declared.

LIKED AFRICA BUT GLAD TO BE HOME

William Barto Returns After Two
Years Absence Working in
South African Mine

TRAVELLED 18,000 MILES

Was One of Few White Men Working
in Copper Mine; 2,000
Natives Employed

Tanned from a life in the open, the picture of good health, William Barto, 30, was happy to be back in his home with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Peter Barto, Route 6, Brainerd, today after a two years absence which took him to Luanshya, Northern Rhodesia, South Africa, where he was engaged in diamond drilling for copper at the Roamantelys mine for the E. J. Longyear Exploration Co. of Minneapolis. "I got a big kick out of the country for the first two months. The strangeness fascinated me. Then I became accustomed to the different types of people I met. I liked the place and the country but there is no place like the good old United States," Barto said.

The trips going and returning and his experiences at work in South Africa were liberal educations and thrills.

Barto left Brainerd on October 22, 1928, travelled to New York, sailed to Southampton, England, from there to Capetown, South Africa by way of the Maderia Island. He started the returned journey from Durban, South Africa on October 25, 1930 sailing by way of Singapore and Hong Kong. He spent eight days in Japan sight-seeing. He landed at Kobe and went by train from Kobe to Kyoto, then to Nira and Tokyo, from Tokyo he sailed to Yokohama, then to Honolulu and from Honolulu to San Francisco where he took a train for Minneapolis and Brainerd.

Mr. Barto's desires when he returned to the United States were varied. He felt an exhilarating thrill at stepping on home soil again and excitedly walked down the streets of one of his country's cities. He ate with great relish American food again, long desired from African food which was short on greens and vegetables due chiefly to the heat of the climate. His trip carried him a distance of 18,000 miles.

When Barto arrived at the mine there were 40 whites and 2,000 natives working. In the last year, however, the white population has increased.

The favorite mode of dress of the men is shorts because of the heat, the temperature remained stationary at 105 degrees for months at a time, Barto said.

Mr. Barto had the pleasure of seeing now and again another Brainerd man who was employed by the same company at Muffura, Northern Rhodesia. His friend was Robert Peterson who will work another two months under his contract in South Africa and then return to Brainerd.

Asked regarding the missionary work in that part, Mr. Barto said, "there are several missionaries there, and some natives like them and some don't. Some of them teach the natives so that they get 'wise' and they won't work and want more money. Some of them help the natives and others just the opposite."

Regarding sale of liquor he said, "it is open country and they have whiskey, but it is very expensive. The natives make their own Kafir beer. There is little drunkenness."

Asked as to the British rule over there and whether they held much authority over them, he said "They hold quite a bit of authority. The natives all have to work under the British flag."

"As to food there was not much variety, there was no ice and it was hard to keep any vegetables. The only ones we had were those raised in a small vegetable garden. Our water was warm all the time, and we carried it in bags.

"We were in the wilderness, so we had no pleasures such as we have here, however in the larger cities they have the talkies, etc., mostly American films. The natives do not show much interest in them. We lived in huts built of clay. There are no buildings of frame because the ants eat the foundations," he said.

Regarding wages of natives over there he said, "they are paid about 10c a day or $4.00 a month. We had five servants with each train outfit, and each one of us had a house servant who did the work, our washing, kept the house clean, etc. Their wants are few. For we Americans, the company figured it cost about $40 a month for each living expense. Most of our food stuffs were imported from Cape Town, that is, most of it except our meat."

Asked regarding peculiarities of the natives, as to superstition, etc., Mr. Barto said, "Yes, most of them are quite superstitious. They also like to stick to one line of trade or work and not change or go beyond that."

"How do the natives feel toward the United States, do they know anything about this country," he was asked. "No, they don't seem to know anything about it," he replied.

CHECK ARTISTS HIT CITY MERCHANTS

Business Men Warned Not to Accept
Checks Until Identification
Is Made

Police and bank officials alike in Brainerd today warned merchants of the city and others not to accept checks from strangers.

Demand identification when a person you do not know offers to pay by check. Get in touch with banks also to find out if the checks are legitimate, the business men were instructed.

The city police department and the sheriff's department are confronted with an epidemic of "bad" checks. Over $100 in forged and worthless checks have been passed on Brainerd stores since December.

One check artist passed a number of checks before business men found them of no worth. By that time he had left the city.

Another check artist has been posing as a salesman, cashing in on forged checks for "orders."

OBSERVE BIRTHDAY OF 18TH AMENDMENT

11th Anniversary Made Occasion of Program by
W. C. T. U.

The W. C. T. U. met at a 11th birthday anniversary of the 18th amendment to the constitution, at the home of Rev. and Mrs. P. G. Fallquist, 315 South Ninth street. A fine program of songs, speeches and readings were given with Mrs. Grondin presiding in her usual efficient manner.

The slogan of the W. C. T. U. for this year is "Observance and Enforcement—Not Repeal." The addresses, readings and songs, all, emphasized this. Rev. W. R. Thomas spoke on Observance; Mrs. F. J. Zander on Enforcement, and Rev. E. A. Valiant on "No Repeal." Rev. J. R. Michaelson and Mrs. P. G. Fallquist each sang a beautiful solo, and duets were sung by Mrs. Axel Gustafson and Mrs. Fallquist, also Ruby and Ruth Fallquist. Four White Ribboners also sang a selection. Mrs. A. C. Erickson, Mrs. A. Gustafson and Mrs. Emma Wolhart each gave readings. Mrs. Axel Gustafson was chairman of the program committee.

Mrs. Mary Wolhart baked a lovely birthday cake and decorated it with 18 candles, which was served with refreshments at the close of the afternoon.

MENTHOL COUGH DROPS

GIRL INAFRAID

BY GLADYS JOHNSON

Ardeth More Lonely Than Ever After Ken's Visit.

CHAPTER XXXIII.

"PLEASE!" She held up one hand in affected weariness. "Don't shout. There is no need of taking the servants into the argument." Then, with a sudden, furious change, her eyes glared and her teeth were bared. "You'll do as I say, do you hear? If you don't you'll be sorry! You'll—you'll—"

She hesitated, at a loss to vent her spleen. "Look here," she went on in a low, furious voice, "as long as you can go sneaking off to visit your shopgirl, I'll invite whom I please."

Amazement in his glance. "Why what are you talking about?" "I'll show you!" The sheet snapped at her heels as she ran back to the dresser. She flung back the lid of a jewel case. Picked up something between thumb and forefinger; held it out to him.

"There! Didn't know I held the ace, did you?"

She put the tiny object on her palm. A small flower, made of seed pearls.

"The baby's nurse found this in his hand one Sunday after you had taken him out . . . calling on your shopgirl. I recognized it at once. I remember the day Jeanette bought that chain for the shop. It was imported, the only one of its kind. Now, what have you to say?"

Her eyes were half closed in triumph as she faced him, so that they looked like pale slits in a mask of jade.

Ken's eyes had gone blank. "Just this—no matter what you may choose to think, that meeting was entirely harmless. If fault lies anywhere, it is with me. I was weak enough to see her. But you mustn't blame her—"

Cecile's lip curled. "Blame her! I don't even consider her! But—I think this makes us quits!"

The Breach Widens.

The man's mouth tightened.

"No. It doesn't enter into the case. I am making no pact with you, Cecile. I repeat the request I came in here to make. I do not wish Cyril Underhill received in this house. I have asked you to do me the consideration—"

"And I—" Cecile said through her teeth, "have decided that he shall come here whenever I wish! If you make a scene I'll drag in your shopgirl!"

"Has she ever been out?" asked Cecile with false sweetness. "Do you think I'm a fool? I know she was trying to get you. And I'll tell you something further and you can pass it to her. You're mine! She can't ever get anything of mine away from me! Her little game will do her no good! I'll never give you a divorce. Tell her that for me!"

To Ardeth the loneliness was harder to bear after that glimpse of Ken and the baby.

In the daytime it was not so bad. Then she was busy with the shop and the customers. But at night—when Ah Ling had slipped into her smart sports coat, pulled her new beret over the marcelled waves of her hair and departed for her Chinatown home, then the gray specter of loneliness crept in to fill the small, quiet store.

The big chair under the lamp spoke of Ken. . . . She did not like to see Tom sitting there when he called on her in the evenings.

Many nights now, when she lay

She went into the dark house with him.

staring wide-eyed into the dark, listening to the mice scampering in the store room. To the footsteps of some late wanderer passing the door. Seeing the first gray traces of dawn creeping through the little alley window.

Loneliness . . . almost tangible . . . filling the shop like a dread presence, driving her out to walk the streets like a homeless thing.

When the dark mood struck it had no pity. Nothing could lighten it. Tom's clumsy kindnesses filled her with secret exasperation. No comfort in Mary Eastwood's blunt common sense. No company in Carolyn Forsythe's prim, bright home.

She wandered through the dark like an exile, her heart swelling with unshed tears.

Emptiness.

Why had this dreary emptiness fallen to her lot? she asked herself in hot rebellion. Why had unhappiness struck like a blight across these warm young years, rendering them sterile, and forlorn?

She had the desperate need of clinging to something. Of belonging. It was this, perhaps, which sent her one night wandering through the old neighborhood of the Harrison flat.

Not since that stormy night two years ago had she been here. Fell Street . . . the Fell Street of her childhood—dingier than ever.

The corner grocery store with cellar steps guarded by an iron rail, where she had hidden in hide-and-seek games with Neil. Filled as always with coddled newspapers and rubbish. . . . Rows of wooden houses, shabbier, more weather-beaten than she remembered them.

The corner where Ken had always stopped the car. Down there in the middle of the block, in grey ugliness, the Harrison flat. Long, bleak windows. The warped wooden steps.

The front door, banded with panes of colored glass. She remembered how she and Bet had pressed their noses first to one pane, then another, looking out on a street turned uncannily purple, or murky red or a dismal and cold blue.

The doorway was like a black cave, thick with gloom. . . . Her heart leaped. Someone stand there, fitting the key in the lock. Blur of white face. A man's form running down the stairs.

Neil's voice, shaking—irreducible, "Ardeth. . . it is you!"

Dismay and smothered excitement pounding her heart. Out of the past. . . . Neil! Neil, tall before her! His white intense face—black eyes boring down into her own.

"I thought I was dreaming hearing your step on the sidewalk—I'd know it anywhere. I listened for you so long. . . . Then, with smothered force, 'Why are you here, Ardeth? Why did you come?'"

His very force repelled her as it had always done. She found herself repeating the whim which sent her back here into the past. Her tone was defensively light.

Retraced Steps.

"Oh—just taking a walk to get the cobwebs out of my brain. I'm indoors so much now, you know. Just happened to find myself walking this way—"

A breathless silence when each studied the other. A thrill went through the girl at the dynamic force of him. Like—yet changed from the Neil she remembered.

Black hair falling in a heavy shock over his white forehead. Black eyes looking from straight black brows.

She found herself suddenly eager to get away. Fumbling with her purse. Trying to rebut her glove.

"So you came back, Ardeth—" Neil was saying softly.

She tried to treat it lightly. "They say the murderer comes back to the scenes of his crime. What do you hear of the Harrisons, Neil?"

He told her, impatient at the turn she had given the conversation.

Bet was engaged. . . . Going to be married next Spring. Tom had hurt his hand—they had been afraid of blood poisoning, but he was all right now. Aunt Sel had gone up on the river with Stan and Paul for the last school vacations.

And all the time the man's burning black eyes were drinking her in, drawing her down into his heart as though he would never let her go.

Abruptly, "You'll come in, Ardeth? Granny's heart would be broken if she knew you'd come by without coming in to see her."

She wanted to refuse. She was suddenly filled with panic. She crushed it down and went into the dark house with him, feeling the years drop away as the remembered smell of the dusty hall.

Filled with the ridiculous fancy that she was walking into a trap.

2. What makes the flowers Black as night Yet paints the walks And fences white?

3. What makes the earth look Clothed in white, As it shines in the sky On a starlit night?

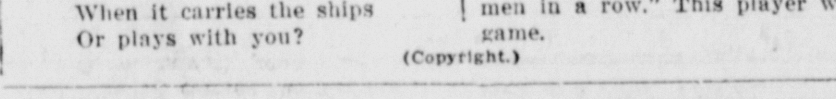

4. What is all around That you cannot see; That you breathe right in And to all is free?

5. What is sparkling clear Yet looks dark blue, When it carries the ships Or plays with you?

Button Game

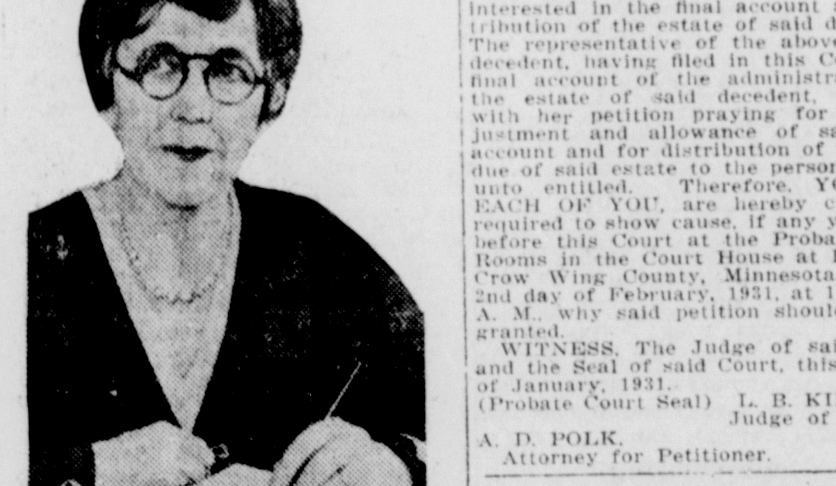

Take a piece of cardboard nine inches square. Draw on it with a crayon, this diagram. Take three small black buttons and three small white ones. There should be two players only. One has the black buttons and one has the white. The first player places a button on any one of the nine dots. The second does likewise. Each plays in turn until all the buttons have been placed. Then each in turn moves buttons from dot to dot by way of the lines, continuing until one player succeeds in placing "three men in a row." This player wins the game.
